School's Back in Session

All too soon the final days of summer came, and hundreds of would-be Vaca High students were faced with thoughts of back-to-school life. Some of the students looked forward to the return to school days, while others pulled the covers over their heads in hopes of avoiding the whole thing entirely.

The Vaca High campus seemed lifeless at first, with lonely and silent hallways free from student clutter. But slowly, the halls came to life with the sounds of students greeting old friends, and welcoming new faces. Then, within minutes, the halls were full of rowdy students who were trying to get back into the swing and flow of campus life. Everyone compared schedules and caught up on the events of summer. The Sophomores looked sufficiently lost while they peered hopelessly down at the class numbers on their schedules, with no idea as to where they were supposed to be.

The first bell rung, as if to remind the students where they were and why they were supposed to be there. Gradually the halls emptied again, though now cluttered with students' belongings. And the thought that lied on everyone's mind was that, once again, school's back in session.

Nothing ever stays the same, especially not in Vacaville. It has changed to accommodate the lifestyles of the new generation and the new era in which we live. These changes in our community did not occur overnight; however, many changes have been in the past year. We have been witness to the construction of a new sports center and a new shopping center. We also welcomed Will C. Wood as a high school.

This year, Vacaville High School received the final touches of a face lift with the painting of our bulldog mural and the finishing touches of blue paint in our corridors. But the most important change in our school is the arrival of our new principal, Mr. Boone.

Homecoming was the week that brought out the bulldog in all of us. The theme was "Journey Around the World". The events were filled with fun, happiness, and Bulldog Spirit. Monday led off with Tacky Tourist dress-up day. This caused students to break out in their best plaids and stripes. Tuesday proved to be most hilarious with Servant Day. On this day, only the owners knew what was to lie ahead for the poor, unknowing servants. Wednesday turned out to be a colorful, cloudy day. Color Wars was the time for the classes to declare war on one another. The Seniors won using tons of tiny pieces of red paper. Next came the Juniors with blue and finally the Sophomores with white.

Thursday was the traditional class dress-up day. Seniors wore their best togas, while the Juniors strutted the halls as surfers. Both had to be careful not to upset the Sophomores, for fear of being shot down by guns and arrows. Finally, Friday came, and it was time for the Bar-B-Que. 600 kids showed up for food, drinks, and a whole bunch of fun. The football coaches did a dance, Stephanie Ambrose got to Kiss a pig, and the Homecoming Court ran a relay. The spirit at this event was spectacular. This Bar-B-Que will go down in Vaca High history and may be the beginning of a tradition for years to come.

This year's homecoming was the best ever. Many trend setting events were brought to life, giving the students renewed faith and spirit in their teachers, football team, and most of all, themselves. The week came to an end with the crowning of the 1989 Homecoming Queen, Coby Bailey.

HOMECOMING

The Envelope Please ...

Friday, October 20, 1989, was the long awaited day. Homecoming week had come to an end. Tonight the Homecoming court was to make their grand appearance, and the queen was to be announced.

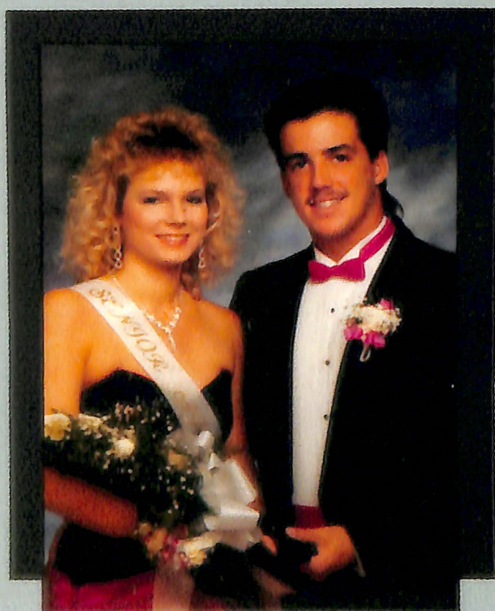

The attendants all arrived in a Mercedes'. The Senior class attendant, Nicole Nola, escorted by Mike Branson, arrived first and took her place on stage. Next came the Junior class attendant, Christine Kelly, escorted by Andy Johnson. Finally the Sophomore class attendant, Jennifer Shelton, escorted by Eddie Gorelick stepped onto the stage. Each of them looked radiant.

The nominees for the 1989

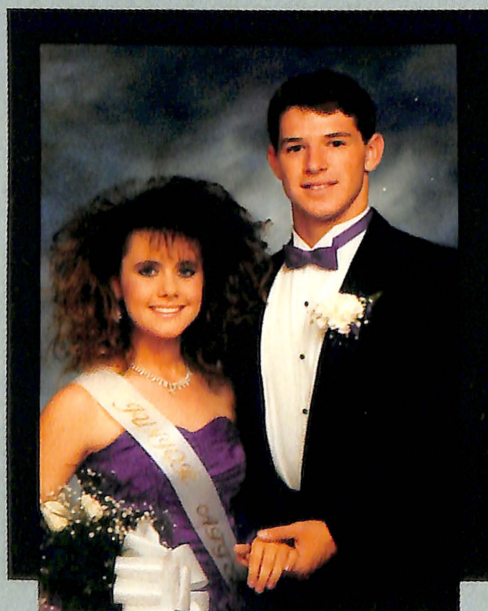

Homecoming queen were; Kristen Barber, Coby Bailey, and Kristi Waldren. They had each worked hard to show off their school spirit to be where they were, but only one was to be crowned queen. No matter who was picked, they were all winners in the eyes of the crowd.

The moment everyone was waiting for finally arrived. The nominees for queen, and their escorts arrived in a Mercedes' and took their places on the stage.

Katherine Wells approached the microphone. The crowd silenced as she spoke, "The 1989 Homecoming queen is ... Coby Bailey".

The Game That Ended in Sudden Death

With so much riding on the outcome, the 1989 Homecoming game was intense. The Varsity Bulldogs were more determined than ever to beat Napa, their league rival. A victory would move them into the first place position in the Monticello Empire League and bring them one step closer to the playoffs.

The pressure did not seem to shake up quarterback Buddy Mason, who put on an impressive showing by throwing for a total of 113 yards; however, Meko May was the real hero of the game, making three touchdowns. It was a frustrating game for both sides of the field, being plagued with the "yellow flag". Penalties withheld the Bulldogs from running their plays the way they would have like to, but it was evident to both coaches and fans that Vacaville out-played the Indians.

With 18 seconds left in the game, the Indian quarterback threw a pass that defensive back, Dyrell Foster, deflected. The ball was grabbed by T.C. Cunningham and ran for a 46 yard gain, into Indian territory. Bobby Underwood attempted a 46 yard field goal which was unsuccessful and the game was ended with a 20-20 tie.

A sudden death round was played in order to determine which team would go to the section play-offs in the event of a tie at the end of the season. The Indian offense received the ball on the 10 yard line and had four downs to score. Napa fumbled the ball and Vacaville's Brad Humphries recovered it. Napa's turn was over and the Bulldogs ran two plays and gained 7 yards. With 3 yards to go, Meko May ran the ball into the endzone, scoring for the Bulldogs and making them the victors.

STUDENT LIFE

The daily events and happenings of Vacaville High School students are recorded on the following pages. Student Life is made up of activities such as Winter Festival, the Talent Show and individual student activities and achievements. The memories that are made each year, the friends we have and the new ones we meet, the funny, silly, and even crazy things we did are all here between the covers of this book.

Years from now, when you pull out the old dusty yearbook, perhaps some of these pictures and articles will strike within you a memory long forgotten of people and places. It is said that of all things — memories are priceless. If the saying rings true, then here in your hand is a treasure.

Go FIGHT WIN

If anyone deserved more credibility and respect for the activity they were involved in, it was the Vacaville High School Cheerleaders. From 3:00-5:00 p.m. each day after school, the cheerleaders were out on the front lawn practicing. From kicks to jumps to high risk stunts, our girls worked hard to support our teams. They not only cheered for football, they also cheered at soccer and basketball games and rallies.

The cheerleaders are dedicated to what they do. At the big Cordova game, our cheerleaders stuck it out cheering the entire game in a torrential downpour.

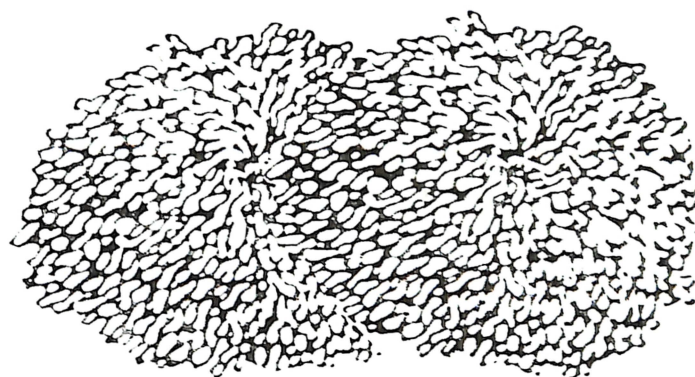

Each summer the cheerleaders attend USA Camp. Due to their superior skills and abilities, the Varsity Cheerleaders were invited to perform in Hawaii. They were also invited to perform at the San Francisco 49er game. The home cheer this year was different from anything that we had ever seen before. The cheerleaders used props, signs reading Go! Fight! Win! and performed amazing stunts which are the latest trend in cheerleading.

Mrs. Carrington and Mrs. Mitchell were the new advisors of the pepsquad. Under their supervision, the pepsquad has come a long way.

BOOGIEING FOR THE BULLDOGS

Through the frosty winters and the scorching summers, the Pom Pon squad and Mascots of Vacaville High School stood proud. The spirit of these girls shined through at the games and also in the many activities held during school. You would always catch them cheerfully helping out whenever they could. The Pom Pon and Mascot are the true stronghold of our school spirit and pride. At camp the squad was unanimously voted superior. This group of girls had a unity of friendship that will last a lifetime. The unity award was given to our girls because of this reason. These girls have worked through the some hard times, but always stuck in there for the good of the school. The students loved watching the 1990 Pom Pon and Mascot perform their enlivening routines at our sporting events. These girls are truly sports ladies.

The 1989-1990 Vaca High Drill Team deserves a lot of credit for keeping our school spirit alive. This year the Drill Team displayed their ability and style at all of the Bulldogs home football games. They kept the audience captivated and on the edge of their seats, while they performed their breathtaking and stylish moves.

This being Mrs. Plastico's last year as advisor of the Drill Team, it has turned out to be a rewarding one. Vaca High says, "Thank you Mrs. Plastico" for all of the time, effort, and hard work you've put into the Drill Team to make them the best ever. It has really paid off!

ZONIN' ONE DAY AT A TIME

Hey, it happens to all of us. The daily struggle of high school never ends. Six o'clock seems to come earlier every morning and math class seems to last longer and longer. So as the alarm rings you get up to rush to the shower, get dressed, eat something you call "break-fast", and leave an hour early to get a parking space. You desperately count how many days left until summer. Finally at school, you get a break to socialize with friends but, oops! Only two minutes until first period. Not to worry though, you make it to class with record breaking speed. As the day wears on you fearlessly face such dreaded obstacles as rush hour traffic in the halls, lectures that would put even Mr. Boone to sleep, and teachers who think the only class you have is their's. RRRing . . . lunch! "All right." You think to yourself, "I can finally have some fun." Sorry, you thought too soon. As you sit in your parked car waiting to get out of the lot you wonder why you put yourself through this misery: "These are supposed to be the best years of my life. Isn't that what everybody keeps telling me?" Then in the next car the one and only love of your life looks over and smiles. Oh, god! Maybe school isn't that bad after all. In a happier mood a thought suddenly strikes you: food! The smell of enchiritos beckon. Arriving at Taco Bell, though, you see a line that could put even Russia's to shame. Oh well, you wait. By the time you get back to school, yep you guessed it! Only two minutes left again. As you stumble down the hall, a stack of books in hand, the rest of your Pepsi spills all over your new white pants. Uh, how many days until summer again?

GIVING THE GIFT OF LIFE

Do you ever get the urge to do something for a good cause? If you happen to be a person with a healthy body, run to the nearest blood bank, and donate some blood. This year Vacaville High was the top school in Solano County to donate blood. Over 239 students signed up to give blood. Overall 200 pints were donated to the Solano County Blood Bank.

"It was great to see teachers come to donate, not just students," said Kristina Lake. This year was the first year that 16 year olds were able to donate but only under two conditions:

1. Parent permission slips.

2. A doctor had to be there at the time of giving blood. Some students were turned away, because they didn't weigh enough, their blood pressure was too low or too high, they were sick, or they had iron poor blood. But enough healthy, iron rich blood was made available for any emergency. We did a great job!

Teen Kick Off

Teen Kick Off is a group of teenagers who travel across the country to spread the word, "Drugs aren't cool!" This group is unique because its members are in drug rehabilitation and aren't just hired performers who put on a show.

This powerful drama is aimed towards all teens. The cast of four dramatize personal experiences in their own battle with drug or alcohol abuse.

Recently the cast lost a close friend, another cast member. She reverted back to the drug scene and quit the program. In the dramatization, she is still included to emphasize the strength of drug and alcohol abuse. Her absence showed the true pain friends feel for their addicted friends.

In our society, we tend to glamorize the use of alcohol and drugs. Programs such as T.K.O. help to show teens the true side of substance abuse and through the question and answering period, teens are given an opportunity to satisfy their curiosity without getting hooked.

Spanning Across the Globe

As foreign competition increases in our world today, so too does the struggle to be the super power of all nations. And as we watch neighboring countries, from land to sea, strive for a peaceful coexistence, many nations are still contending with major universal issues. But there is a lighter aspect to these problems in our changing world. From East to West, from North to South, a large group of young, curious adults span across the globe each year to take part in the adventures of living and learning another culture in a country of foreign soil.

These foreign exchange students of Vaca High were not only exposed to the culture clash between the U.S. and their own country, but they also shared with us a new perception of the world. With their own values and traditions, they bridged a gap between two nations that are now less strangers to one another. It is, indeed, a rare honor for these young ambassadors to make a small step in gaining foreign relations; and, not surprisingly, a bigger step in gaining international friendship. They left us with a bit of sadness to say goodbye, but on a happier note, they also left us with a deeper understanding of the world and, more importantly, of ourselves.

Rehearsal For Murder

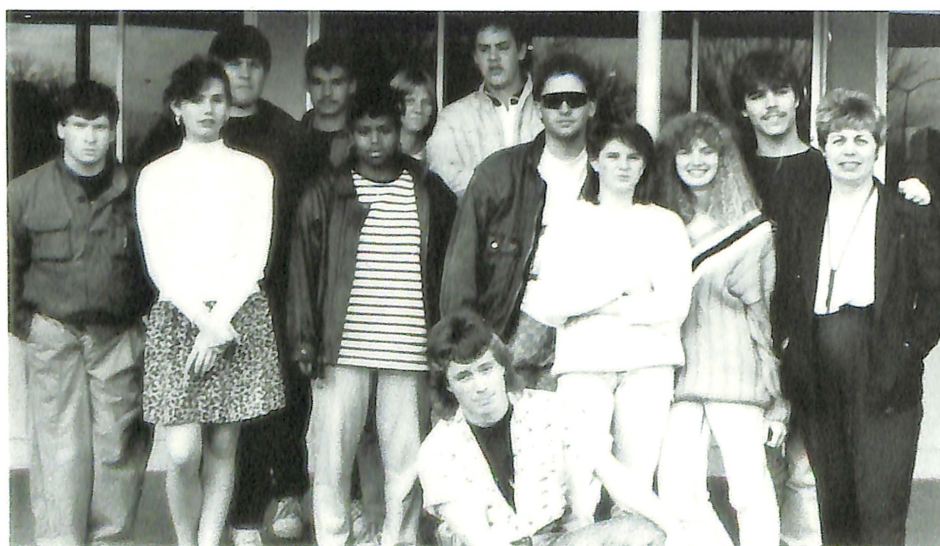

Vacaville High School's fall production Rehearsal for Murder, centered around the theme "a play within a play." Friends and co-workers of Monica Welles a once talented actress, gather a year after her supposed suicide to find out which one of them murdered her.

This intense drama production, under the direction of Mrs. Edwards, was performed on December 6th, 7th, and 9th. Rehearsal for Murder was an excellent adaptation of the teleplay written by Richard Levinson and William Link.

What is theater? Theater is a tool, a traveling machine. It carries its passengers to any place, at any point in time. On stage, the actors are anyone and anything real or imagined. The audience may find stories of love and death that takes them to places unexplored. Many say that this might be hiding from reality, from the truth. The plays performed aren't just about a sprite known as Puck, a girl named Emily, or even a dog called Snoopy. Every performance seen is about people and how they live their lives. It is a dream come to life; an event reenacted. Theater exhibits a different perspective, another angle, and gives a better view of people and who they think they are. It is impossible to hide in theater, one may only find oneself there. If anyone thinks that they could never put themselves in front of an audience and actually perform; they're mistaken. They can, but it might not be easy.

T'was The Night...

'Twas the night of the Christmas Ball
And all through the school
Everybody was dancing
And acting so cool.
The girls were all nestled
So snug in their gowns.
They tried so hard to keep them
From dragging on the ground.
And the boys in their tuxedos
All looking so nice
Could not quite believe it
When they learned of the price.
But they didn't despair.
They didn't complain.
For the girls looked so good
They couldn't refrain.
The gym was asparkle
With decorations galore.
There was dance, music, fun
Who could possibly ask for more?
Then with a stroke of the clock
The dance came to an end.
But not to worry
In one year's time it will soon begin again.

South Pacific

The time was World War II. The Japanese were invading the South Pacific Islands. American soldiers were stationed to counter attack the Japanese. In the month of May, Vacaville High School presented Roger & Hammersteins Musical production of South Pacific. The costumes were well designed and the Little Theater was transformed into an island, making one feel as if they were actually on an island in the South Pacific. The characters gave an outstanding performance. Stacy Abel played Nellie Forbush, a young nurse who was determined not to fall in love with the dashing Emile De Becque, played by Jason Fullerton.

Overall, the whole cast and crew did a superb job at performing the classic musical. The actors captured the essence of a young couple in love in the 1940's.

Just Scrummin' Around

Contrary to popular belief, rugby is a very simple game, with the major objective being to score more points than your opponents. Rugby is very similar to football, though passing forward is not allowed. It is also very similar to soccer in the aspect that kicking is a part of the game. In order to score, the ball must be carried forward to the try line (end zone). The game consists of two twenty minute halves. The team consists of two major groups: the scrum (lineman) and the backs. There are fifteen people out on the field at one time working together to achieve the ultimate goal: to have fun.

Vaca High's Rugby Club is coached by Mr. Jones, who created the team about five years ago and has been relatively successful ever since. This year there were many new faces out on the rugby field. The team had to work extra hard to prepare the new beginners for their first romp out on the rugby field.

Rugby is a non-school sponsored activity that takes a lot of dedication, a strong powerful body, and quick moves. Pain is the name of the game! Broken bones — it doesn't matter, rugby is where it's at!

Student Council

"I move to allocate approximately $600 for the purchase of sodas for the Bar-B-Que Rally," says Theresa Amaya. Eight hands shoot into the air as A.S.B. President Kristen Barber calls for a second to the motion. "I second the motion," states Katherine Tebrock. "Any discussion?" A low murmur of voices fills the room as student council members discuss amongst themselves. A.S.B. Treasurer, Lucinda Leung, raises her hand. "We've already allocated over $9,000 this year, didn't we just allocate $750 for soda last week?"

Nothing but a typical day in student council. The activities that they put on require many hours of planning and preparation. Almost every Tuesday the members meet to update each other on activities and projects.

This year's student council was different from what we'd seen in the past. With Mr. Korman as the new advisor, many changes were made in policy.

The student council at Vacaville High School is a student run class. Their job is to put on activities for the students such as Homecoming, Winter Festival, Talent Show, and Student Body Elections.

Student Council is made up of a variety of people and personalities. Each person brings different views and ideas of what the students want. Through the diversity of its members, student council does its best to cater to the many students of Vacaville High School.

The Newcomer: Mr. Boone

In the past year, did you ever see a large handsome man walking down the halls in a beat up brown leather jacket? That was our new principal, Mr. Ernest Boone. Ernie, as he likes to be called, graduated from Chico State with a Masters Degree in Psychology. After coaching wrestling for ten years he pursued an administrative career and became the principal of River City High School in Sacramento.

The main thing on students' minds was "What are we in for?" Rumors about the new rules he was going to bring to Vaca High flew about. But when you think about it these "new rules" weren't all that bad. So we couldn't eat in class anymore! Just think of the money you saved and the pounds you lost.

Mr. Boone would like to see our school environment "serious but fun," and to have the "students looking forward to graduating and being a success." Another era has begun. One person in a long line of distinguished Vacaville High School principals.

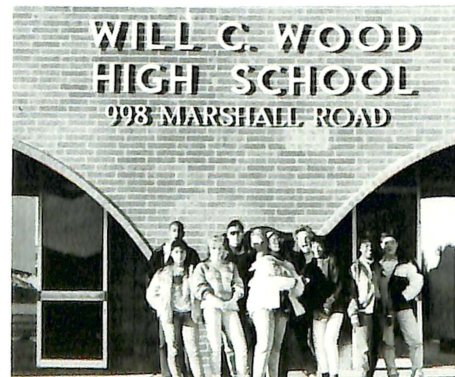

Not So Great Bakker Boy

An angry nation waited, often in amusement, to finally see televangelist Jim Bakker convicted. Leader of the PTL, a $129 million a year ministry, he received a 45 year prison sentence and a $500,000 fine. The trial, held in Charlotte, N.C., had its moments, especially when Bakker broke down on the stand and was later found curled up on the ground and whimpering. The trial was temporarily suspended while Bakker underwent psychiatric tests. His fraud charges included offering lifetime lodging at Heritage USA for $1000 shares, but failed to accommodate. Many of the supporters who lost money were elderly people who could ill afford the expense. With the $158 million in contributions, Bakker bought luxury cars, jewels, and houses. As put by prosecutor Jerry Miller, "Bakker started out loving people and using things, but then he started loving things and using people."

Will C. Wood

The New High School

With the constant growth of Vacaville came the need for new and larger schools. One school that was affected by this growth spurt was Will C. Wood. The conversion plan for Wood has been in the works for some twenty years. The school district felt it was finally time for the change to occur. The plans were drawn, the project put up for bid, and the actual building began. With the building came many problems, but none too large to stand in the way of the Fall of '89 completion. Making Will C. Wood into a high school meant adding a new gym, more classrooms, and a new amphitheater. The 1989-1990 year Wood held students up to tenth grade. 1990-1991 will introduce an eleventh grade and finally during the 1991-1992 school year, there will be a complete high school, ninth through twelfth. Many look forward to a healthy rivalry between Will C. Wood and Vacaville High Schools in both athletics and academics. The Wildcats versus the Bulldogs may well become a traditional cross-town rivalry matching Fairfield and Armijo, Hogan and Vallejo, or Napa and vintage.

The one ironic point in all of this is that, by the time Will C. Wood completes its transition, a third high school will be needed for a growing Vacaville.

Let's Get Physical

In the beginning of 1990, the Georgie Duke Sports Complex opened its doors to Vacaville teens. The complex was named for long time volunteer, George Duke. Bert Hughes and George Duke were the directors of the city's Boy's Club from 1954 to 1966, and the recognition for the years of dedicated service, the sports complex went to Hughes, Duke and their families.

The 13,600 square foot building, which was built on Andrews Park Hill, includes a gym and a multi-purpose room. The complex also features a small locker room with showers.

The sports complex offers a home for many popular teen sports activities. Some of the possibilities are basketball, badminton, gymnastics, aerobics, and an area for indoor soccer.

Despite various setbacks, its opening was a "dream come true" for many Vacaville citizens. For years sports enthusiasts had to put up with the dark and damp interior of the World War II era Quonset hut that previously graced the site.

New Schools

An ever-expanding student population and an ever-increasing thirst for knowledge has necessitated the construction of several new schools in Vacaville. Fifteen-hundred children will be divided into three new elementary schools: Cooper Elementary, Browns Valley Elementary, and Jean Callison Elementary. The Cooper and Callison campuses are situated on the south side of the freeway and Browns Valley is to be constructed in Boulder Valley in the north. Jean Callison School has been under construction for several months and will open in the fall of 1990. Boulder Valley and Cooper Schools are scheduled to open their doors in time for the 1991-92 school year. These new schools will be a welcome addition to the currently overcrowded student population.

Cowtown Turned City

This small town has grown into a small metropolis. Vacaville has changed in the last three years. Trackhomes have been built in Browns Valley, South Alamo, and by the hospital. This means more students for the school districts and other changes, such as a recreation center, new parks, and new schools. These improvements were distributed throughout the city to make things more convenient.

Bank Of America

The Central Office is Coming

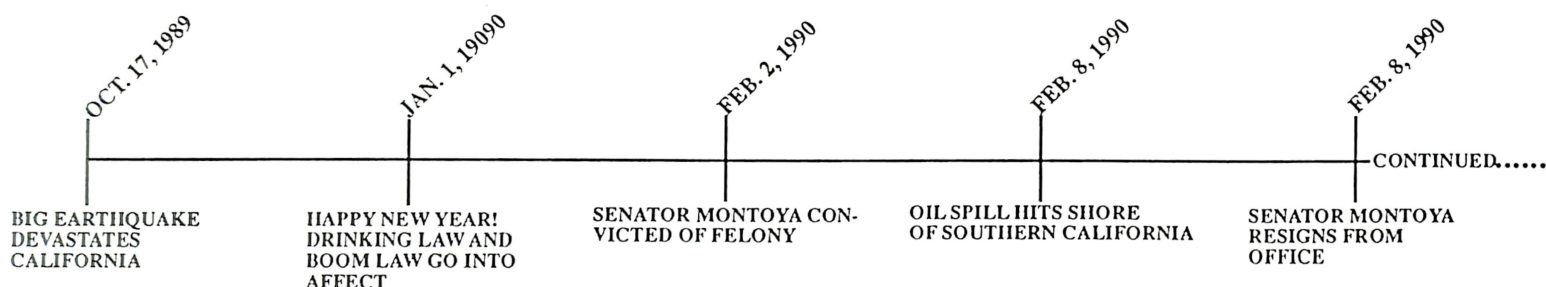

Bank of America purposed a multi-million dollar commercial headquarters for Vacaville. The plan includes the construction of a 650,000 sq ft building on one hundred acres in the Lagoon Valley area over the next four years. This ambitious project will cost about 125 million dollars to build, and will employ between 2500 and 3000 people. Most of the employees will commute to Vacaville from neighboring communities; however, the project will increase Vacaville's population. Jobs available will be managers, computer operators, loan officers, and clerical staff. "4 by 4's" students, who work 4 hours and go to school 4 hours, will be hired.

There is some opposition from groups who would like to limit growth in Vacaville, especially in scenic Lagoon Valley. Other commercial construction is already being planned in adjacent properties. The glider port will eventually be gone, replaced by commercial buildings. According to bank officials, the development of Lagoon Valley is inevitable, and non-polluting industries, like theirs, is the most desirable solution.

As Vacaville enters the 21st century the compromises between pro-growth and anti-growth factions will mold the cities future.

The Earthquake That Shook California

And Where Were You?

What were you doing at 5:04 pm on Tuesday, October 17th, 1989, when the Bay Area was anything but still? For 15 seconds, buildings swayed, gas lines burst, and roadways opened up under the great force of a 7.1 earthquake. Perhaps the most frightening of the damage was the collapse of the 100 foot section of the Bay Bridge and the mile long stretch of the Nimitz Freeway, but everyone had their own story.

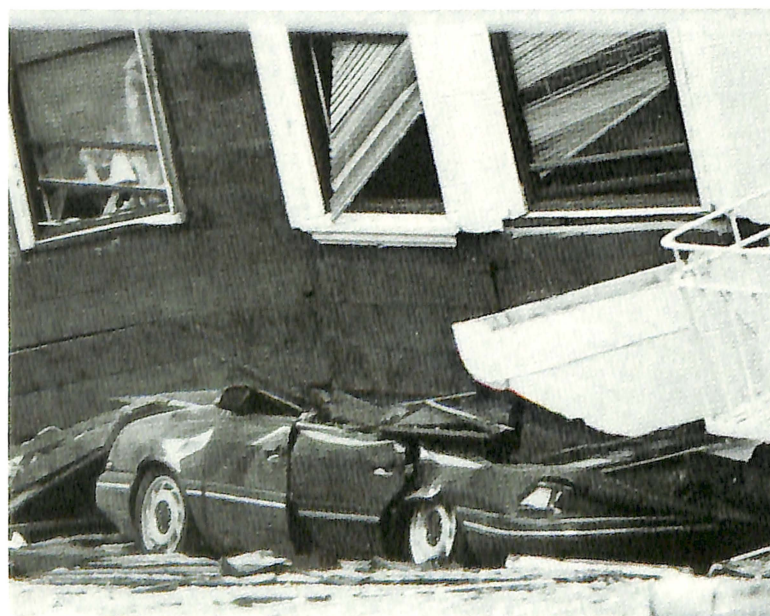

After the ground quit shaking, the damage raged on to the Marina District of San Francisco. For days, thousands were left without electricity, water, and Shelter. Many were moved to temporary locations such as parks and emergency shelters.

Yet, it was not until the following morning that the true damage could be seen. The damage was estimated at over 3 billion dollars, not including the set back of the World Series. Through news coverage, most of its attention was focused upon the Bay Bridge, where one man was killed, and the Nimitz Freeway. At the Nimitz sight, it was uncertain for days as to how many people were killed. Cranes and bulldozers had to be brought in to tear down the crumbling structure. Cars and buses were smashed as flat as a dime and in the end, approximately 80 people died in that tragic episode.

Despite the emense damage, scientists still said that it was not the "Big One" that they had been predicting to strike for years. They did say however, that the epicenter was approximately six miles from the city of Santa Cruz, on the San Andreas Fault and that the October earthquake was just a sample of what is to come. Perhaps now we will be ready and know what to expect.

STATE

Joseph Montoya: Capitol Corruption

On February 2, 1990 State Senator Joseph Montoya became the first California legislator in 35 years to be convicted of a felony while in office.

After an F.B.I. investigation of Capitol corruption, Montoya was accused of 5 counts of extortion, 1 count of money laundering, 1 count of racketeering, and 2 counts of bribery. He was found innocent on 3 of the extortion counts, and the 2 counts of bribery were dismissed. For the felonies of which he was found guilty, Montoya faces as much as 125 years in prison and fines in excess of $1 million.

Following the verdict, the Senate Rules Committee voted unanimously to relieve Montoya of his positions as chairman of both the Senate Business and Professions Committees and the Senate Select Committee on the Pacific Rim. The Senate also threatened to expel Montoya if he did not willingly resign. So on February 9, 1990 Montoya publicly announced his resignation from office, after twenty two years of public service.

New Drinking Law in Effect

The start of a new year included a variety of new laws from the state of California. One of the more popular of these was yet another attempt to crack down on the problem of drunk driving. According to Amendment Section 23152, SB 408, it is now illegal for a person to drive with a blood alcohol concentration of .08 percent or higher. Under the previous law, .10 percent was the legal limit. In addition, if a drunken driver is caught with a child under the age of fourteen in the car, the driver could face an additional jail term of up to ninety days. These new laws took effect on January 1, 1990, and were sponsored by Senator Bill Leonard and Assemblyman Jack O'Connell, passed by the Legislature, and signed into law by Governor George Deukmejian.

BOOM

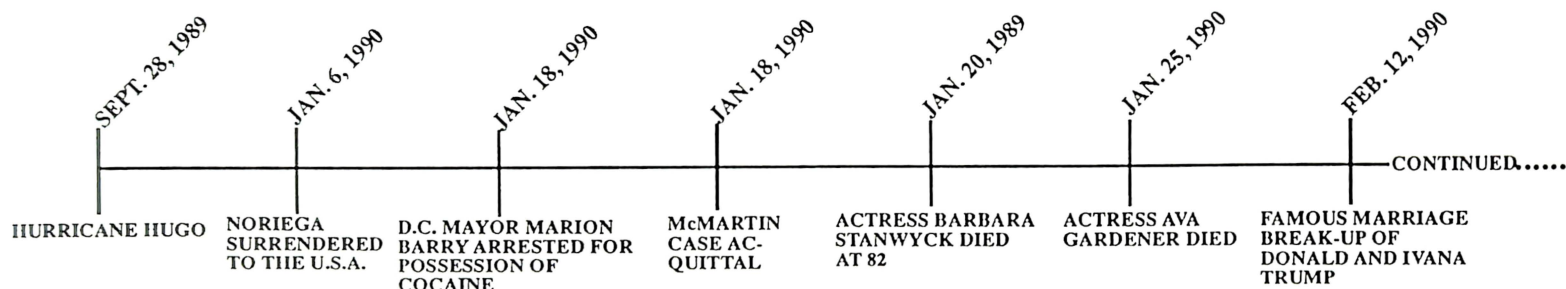

It used to be that you could drive down the road with music blasting as loud as your little heart's desire. Decibels so loud that subsonic base could be felt by pedestrians blocks before the offending vehicle came into sight. Yet, California has put a stop to that by creating the new Boom Law. This law allows the police to ticket anyone whose stereo can be heard 50 feet away from their vehicle.

The state didn't do this to give out more tickets, they did it to keep the peace for all people. Imagine walking down the street listening to twenty different kinds of music at once!

The issue is a classic example of individual rights versus the rights of the community as a whole. The music lover driving the car would like to play his music however he likes. The community demands reasonable silence and freedom from listening to unsolicited music.

False Accusations Cause Racial Unrest

On the night of October 23rd, Charles Stuart left with his wife Carol from a Lamaze class in Boston. He told the police that he and his wife were forced into their car by a black man who robbed them, shot Carol dead, and left him seriously wounded with a gunshot to his thigh. Charles called the police from his car phone while driving away from the scene. At first, Charles looked like a hero. However, suspicious clues began to unravel and questions came up that could not be answered. By this time many black men had been brought in for questioning. There was an outrage in Boston's black community, with charges of racism. Then rumors came saying that Charles had murdered his wife. Finally, on January 3rd, Charles's brother confessed that he had dumped incriminating evidence, including a gun, and that he had known that Charles had intended to murder his wife. Early the next morning Charles drove to Tobin Bridge and threw himself over the edge, killing himself immediately. Police suspected that Charles killed Carol for her life insurance policy so he could open a restaurant.

Japanese Invasion.

The Japanese invasion is still happening. One American Bank and a Ski Slope in Colorado were bought out this year. The Japanese venture in Vacaville is not drawing the amount of money they would like it to. "The Woos" is the only Japanese owned enterprise in Vacaville and it may not be the last.

The Japanese are helping our economy in one sense. The Bank that was purchased helped save a bankrupt Savings and Loans Industry and put more money back into the economy.

Avianca Jet Crashes in New York

During the evening of January 25, 1990, around 9:45 p.m., a Boeing 707 crashed into the hillsides of Cove Neck, New York.

Avianca Airlines Flight 52, from Bogota, Columbia, was enroute to J.F.K. Airport when it crashed, killing 73 of the 161 passengers, many of whom were young children coming to America to their newly adopted families.

The aircraft was to land at 9:24 p.m., but the pilot pulled away due to heavy fog and a low cloud bank. The pilot radioed to air traffic controllers that he needed priority landing due to low fuel and his number two engine had failed. The urgency of his message was not heeded.

At impact, three of the four engines had failed, and the plane went down without a fire. A long investigation of the procedures in the air and on the ground created much controversy.

Washington Mayor Nailed

It was January 18, 1990. A middle-aged man walked nonchalantly into a room in the Vista International Hotel in Washington, D.C., six blocks from the White House. A video camera took everything in. Washington's Mayor, Marion Barry was in the room with two women, a former model and federal informant and a female FBI undercover agent. The agent proceeded to sell $60 worth of crack to Barry. After the DEA recorded him smoking the drug, FBI agents arrested him.

An embarrassed Barry and his supporters felt he was set up as a way to keep him from re-election. The U.S. government said this was not so and that Barry was caught in a drug sting. The entire episode ended up with Barry out of a job and no immediate plans to run for re-election.

The McMartins: Not Guilty

Not guilty was the verdict read on January 18, 1990. After 33 months of trial and 1.5 million dollars, the McMartin Pre-school Scandal was finally over. Or was it?

Six years ago, the allegations of rape, sodomy, and molestation against Raymond Buckey, 31, and his mother, Peggy Buckey, 63, started when a woman in Manhattan complained of possible abuse to her child. In response, 200 letters were mailed out to McMartin Preschool parents, inquiring about possible abuse. The letter named Raymond Buckey as a possible suspect. In turn, 400 children were interviewed by Childrens Institute International. Out of those 400 children, 350 claimed to have been abused by the Buckeys.

When it came to the trial, the Buckeys were charged with 65 counts of sexual abuse. The trial produced some 63,000 pages of testimony, 917 exhibits, and 124 witnesses, many of them children. In the end, 52 counts were acquitted and the remaining 13 were at a deadlock.

The outcome of the trial outraged thousands. As a result, there may be a civil case against the Buckeys and Raymond will re-tried on the 13 counts that were left unresolved. In addition, Ms. Buckey has filed a multi-million dollar suit against the Manhattan Police Department claiming that her reputation was wrongfully ruined.

It Isn't That Easy

The cute little girl we once knew from the movie E.T. had come a long way from innocence. At the age of 9 the young star actress Drew Barrymore was inheriting her family's addiction of drugs and alcohol. In December of 1988 she was released from the ASAP Family Treatment Center when she had thought she was fully recovered from her addiction. At age 14 she looked back and realized she wasn't sober but dry. She had said, "When you're dry you will still say yes when you are offered something." After another relapse and an attempted suicide, Drew was sent back to ASAP and decided to put her life back together. Drew had once said, "It's a never ending process." But she still battles each day for recovery.

Oil Spill

On Feb. 9, the American Trader ran over its own anchor while in shallow water two miles off the shore of Southern California at an oil pipeline mooring. The 400,000 gallons of crude oil was kept clear of the beaches for five days due to offshore winds and calm seas. Later the winds shifted and the sticky mess came ashore. A crew of 2,000 workers helped clean six miles of oilstained beach. The oil spill underscored the need to improve systems of monetary tanker traffic off the coast of California.

Hugo Blows

Beginning as a tropical depression off the West Coast of Africa, it whirled across the Atlantic, gathering strength from the moist tropical air, puffing itself up into a fearsome hurricane. At weeks end Hurricane Hugo, its fury spent, whimpered out in rainfall over southern Canada. Between its gentle birth and welcome demise, Hugo carved an awesome arc of destruction in a 2,300-mile sweep from the Carolinas.

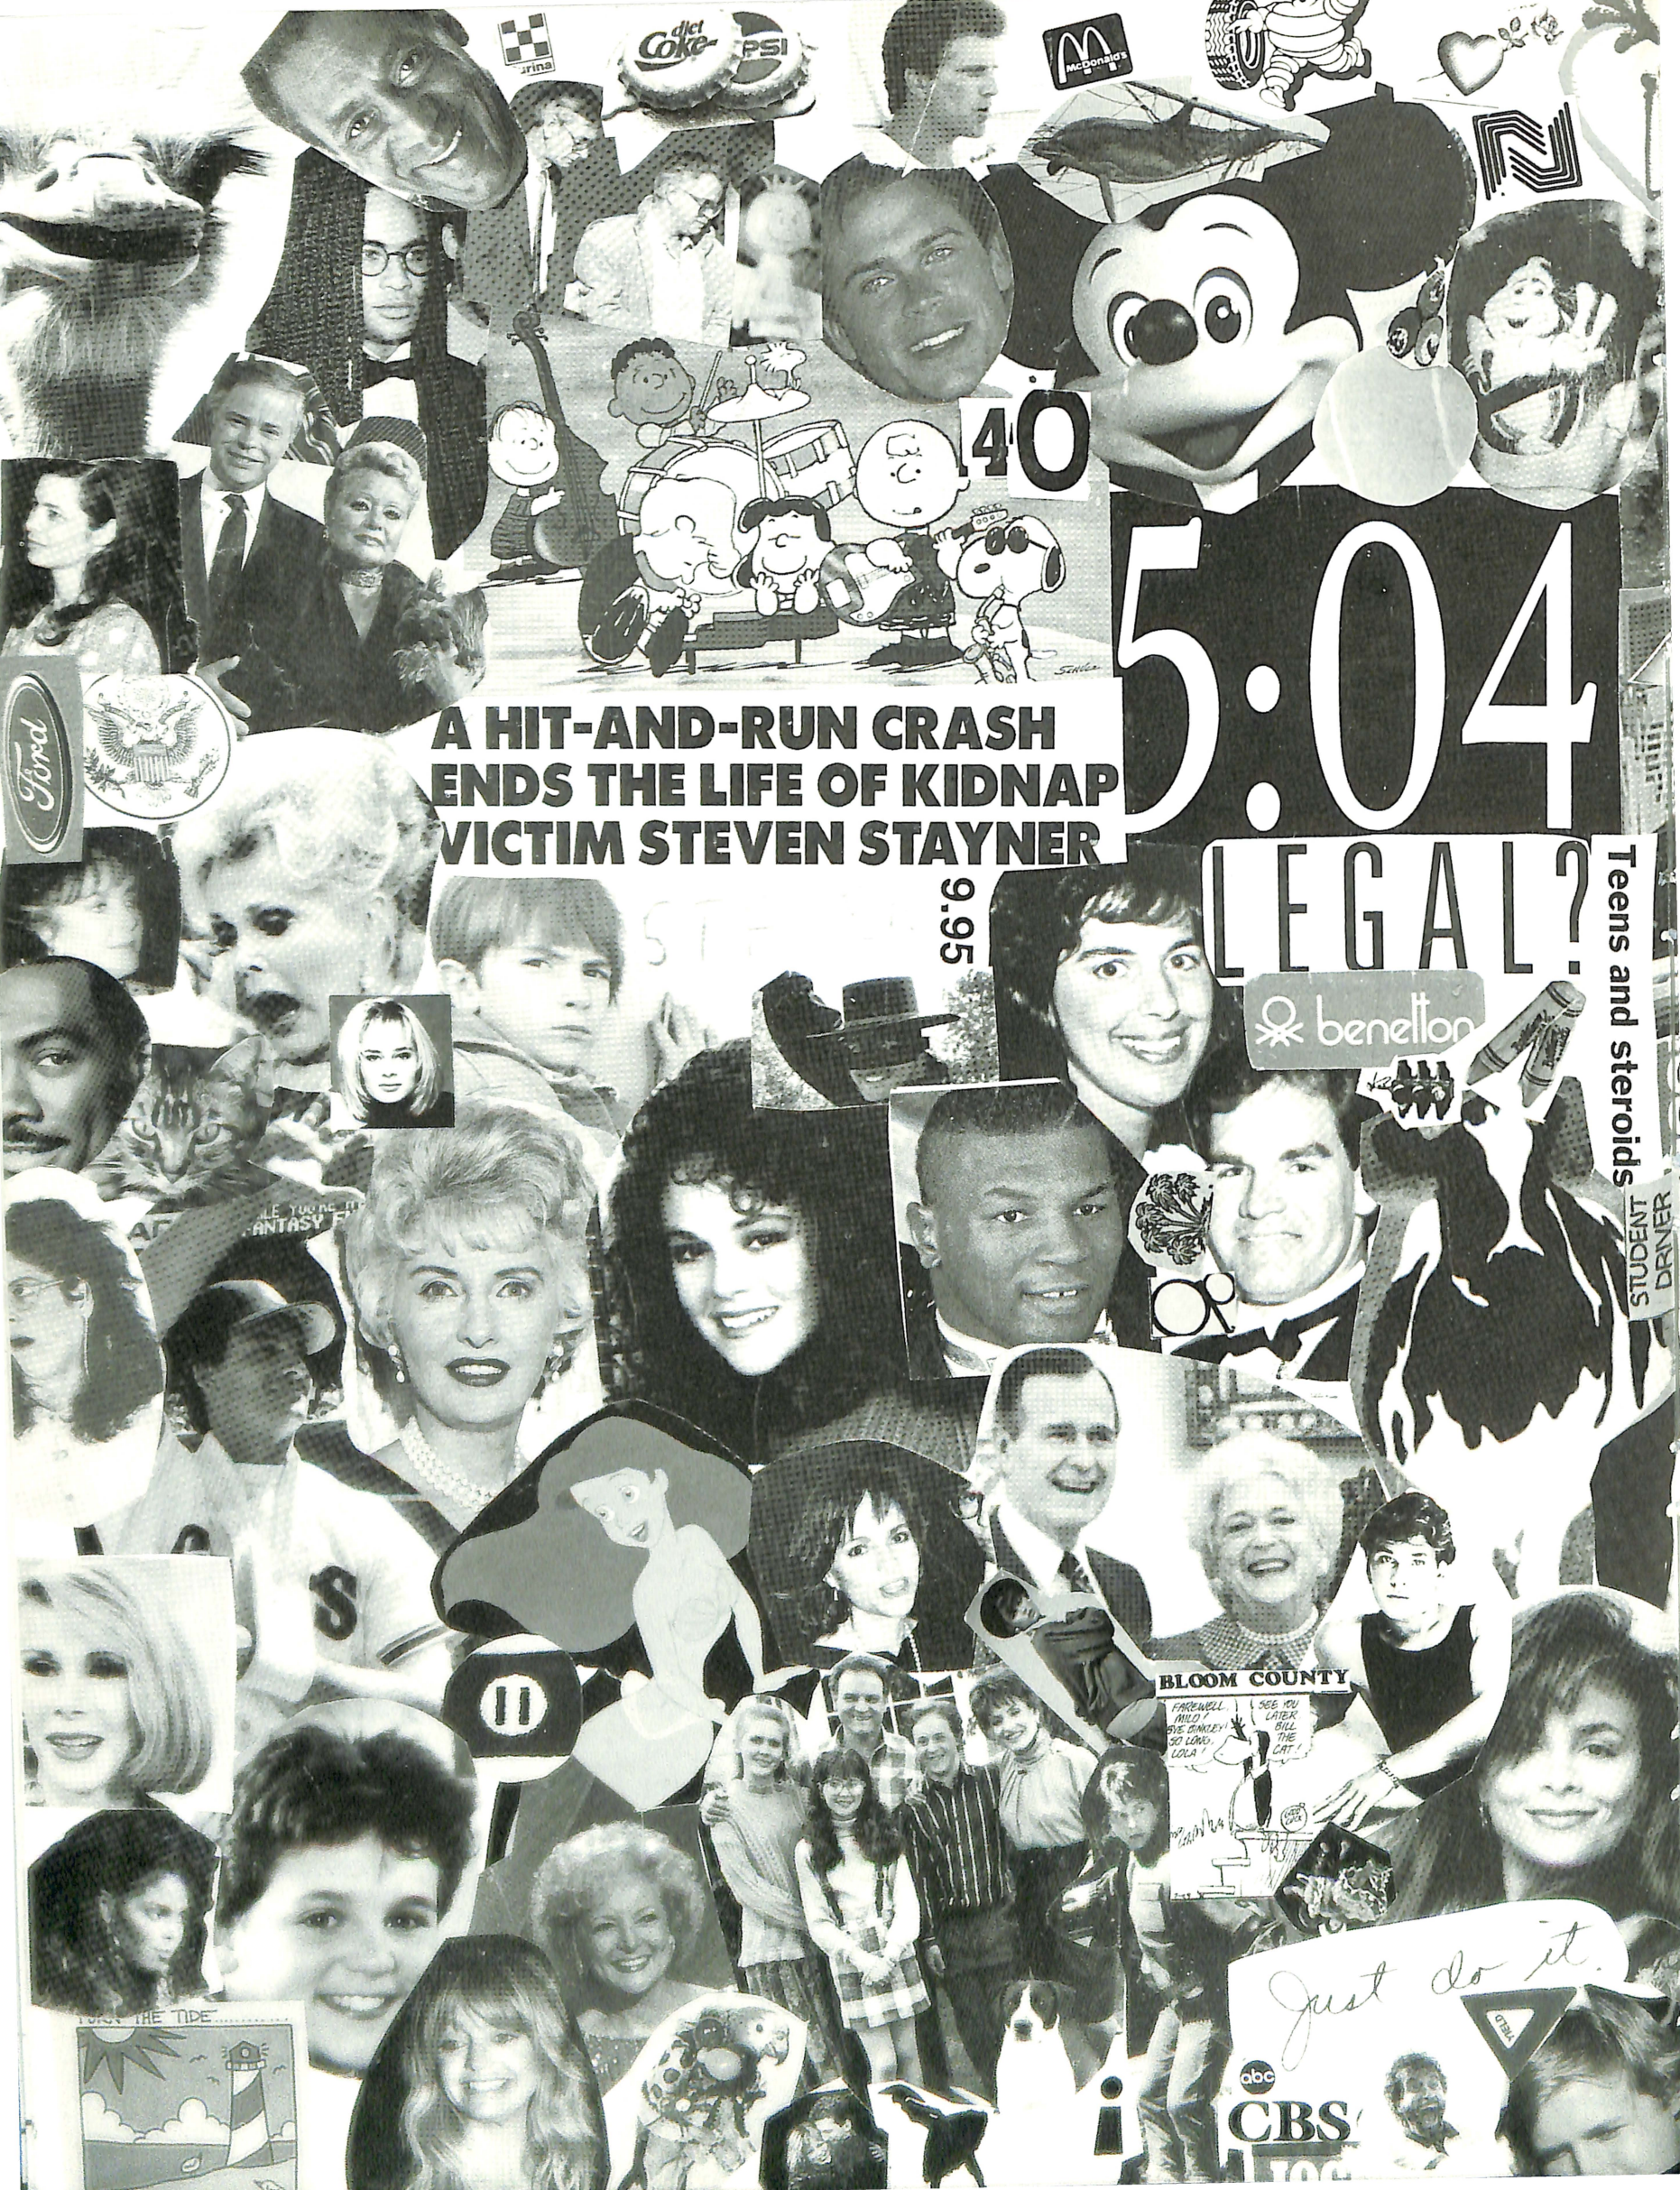

Hurricane Hugo killed 28 people and caused over $2 billion in property damage. It slammed into Charleston with 135 mph winds. Its wrath embraced coastal resorts and barrier islands well into North Carolina. Hugo leveled seaside homes and communities leaving them isolated and without power. In Charleston alone, eleven people were killed and damaged costs were reported to be over $753 million.

The Scandal

Charles Keating was a man with many problems. For about six years he had been in need of money to save his sinking Lincoln Savings and Loans Bank. He started investing in raw land deals and junk bonds in 1984 and has gone downhill since. During his efforts to save his sinking ship, he asked for the help of five U.S. Senators. These Senators included our own Californian Alan Cranston. Each of these Senators received contributions from Keating for their campaigns. Today Lincoln Savings and Loans has sunk, and won't be coming back up for air. The Senators are being investigated for their involvements in this scandal, and Keating was charged with racketeering, fraud, and conspiracy in misusing the bank's funds. Investor losses totalled more than 250 million dollars. The taxpayers, in the end, will have to pay to bail out the system.

Holding the Soviet Union Together

Mikhail Gorbachev confronts the problems of his nation

Over the past five years the world has witnessed some incredible changes in the Soviet Union. President Mikhail Gorbachev is stronger than ever, politically, but he is surrounded by enemies from left to right, and the Russian people are more fed up than ever. After four centuries of reform and repression, the problems only seem to be escalating. Can a strong leader like Gorbachev hold his country together? Or is time running out? With the inflation rising above 7.5% and the increasing shortage of food and domestic supplies, the Soviet Union is witnessing an economical crisis. Not only is this problem increasing, but other problems are tackling the Soviet government. Regional revolts against party leadership, such as last summer's coal strikes, are spreading.

But amid all this turmoil, Gorbachev continues to display a calm side to his political scrambling. He also shows an ability to change and adapt this views to current needs. For example, allowing religious freedom after years of religious oppression in the Soviet Union was a huge and well-accepted change.

For the time being, Gorbachev is still dealing with economic and political adjustments. It is unclear just how much patience the Soviet population will have for their president, but they are laying the country's fate in his hands, hoping the decisions and outcomes will be in their favor. Gorbachev's goal is to complete a natural progression called "humane, democratic socialism." If this name has confused Westerners, it surely has confused the Soviet citizens as well. What Gorbachev needs to do now is find a way to convince his country that there will be improvements. But nationwide, patience is growing thinner and time is running out.

The Slap Heard 'Round the World

Upon hearing the mention of Zsa Zsa Gabor a few giggles are inevitable. But to Zsa Zsa herself, this was no laughing matter. Accused of slapping police officer Paul Kramer, driving with expired plates, having an open container of alcohol in her car, and driving with an invalid license, Zsa Zsa still insisted upon her innocence. Although Gabor said she was sick about the whole ordeal, when reporters were around she certainly seemed willing enough to comment and answer questions. Zsa Zsa called the deputy district attorney a "termite" and accused Officer Kramer of being a homosexual, saying, "Don't you know a gay man would not like a woman like Zsa Zsa Gabor? I marry all the men he would want to have." (eight marriages to be exact). After these and other outbursts Judge Rubin of the Beverly Hills Municiple Court issued a $500 contempt of court citation for violating a gag order. Zsa Zsa promptly stormed out of the courtroom telling reporters: "In Nazi Hungary, they were fairer than here. Here they don't kill you. They kill you with words." In Judge Rubin's eyes it was Gabor's own words which cost her the $500. After 15 days and an esti-

CASC: Across the World

The California Association of Student Councils (CASC) participated in the development and management of a new crusade to raise student awareness throughout California, the United States, and the world, to aid in the preservation of our environment. CASC worked in cooperation with Gateway Pacific Foundation and Creating Our Future and other appropriate organizations to develop the curriculum for the on-board classroom program for the students who participated in this project called Earth Train. Earth Train began in California and traveled across the country carrying student and environmental awareness speakers from all across the globe.

While on board, students ranging in age from 13-19, heard motivational speakers and participated in leadership workshops. But the students' main objective was to draw up proposals on environment programs to present in Washington D.C. to President Bush.

mated $30,000 of taxpayer's money, Zsa Zsa received her verdict: guilty on all counts. Her sentence included 72 hours in jail, 120 hours of community service, and nearly $3,000 in fines. Zsa Zsa was outraged but attorney Kevin Goodman, who served on the jury was displeased. "I'm very, very disappointed," he said. "At the very least, she should spend 30 days in jail. She's so self-centered, 30 days wearing prison garb and eating prison food would do her a world of good."

The episode provided Hollywood with all the entertainment it could handle. Johnny Carson had a field day with Zsa Zsa jokes. After the trial there were no smiles, at least not on the face of Miss Gabor.

A growing number of individuals are becoming distressed at what we are doing to the very thing that enables us to survive: our environment. In 1970 these concerned people united to form the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which controls solid waste, pesticide, noise, and radiation pollution through research, development, and training programs.

Some pressing problems the EPA, and other environmental groups (such as Greenpeace and the Sierra Club), are lobbying against include the burning of crucial rain forests, global "warming," and the destruction of the ozone layer.

These groups have been pushing world leaders to take action against the global tragedies. Finally, George Bush is beginning to answer. Bush, Congress, and even electrical utilities have agreed to cut sulfur-dioxide emissions by 10 million tons a year by 2000. A new tougher Clean Air Act has been proposed to Congress and has yet to be decided upon. Countries like Brazil are starting to enact their own laws to preserve what is left of the precious rain forests.

The continuance of our world isn't just a luxury when times are easy. It's much more than that, it's our responsibility. Each of us as individuals must do our part not only to respect our own surroundings, but we must lobby our representatives to enact tougher laws to protect the global environment.

Berlin Wall Crumbles — German Reunification in Works?

On November 12, 1989, sounds of rejoicement were heard all across Germany as crowds of people watched a construction crew eagerly break down the Berlin Wall. Known as the Iron Curtain, the wall had been a historic reminder of a divided Germany. For over forty years after World War II, East Berlin had been controlled by a communist government that strictly forbade people to move to the West. Hundreds of people trapped on the east side of the wall risked their lives in dramatic escape attempts to the West. But now that the border is open, East Germans are flocking in large numbers to West Germany: 344,000 last year, an additional 58,000 in January, and almost 2,000 every day. The reason for this migration is because of apprehension. While major leaders talk about reunification, many East Germans fear that unity will be delayed, that West German's benefits for arrivals from the East will be cut, and that their own economy will explode. Last February, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and his Foreign Minister, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, said a plan for unification would be ready by this year. Talks of reunification have surfaced old fears of the German military designs snuffed by two World Wars during the past century.

The next years are sure to add new chapters to this unfolding historic event.

U.S. Troops Nab Noriega

Manuel Antonio Noriega, the accused drug dealer and alleged black-magic practitioner, fled to the Vatican Embassy in Panama City after U.S. troops cornered him. In an unprecedented move, President Bush ordered the troops to invade Panama and capture the elusive leader. The move cost more than 600 human lives, including 23 dead G.I.'s, $2 billion in economic damage, and loss of U.S. credibility with other nearby countries.

Once cornered at the Vatican Embassy, soldiers blasted the dictator with rock music, such as "No Place to Run," "Voodoo Child," and "You're No Good." Meanwhile Washington and the Vatican were trying to come up with a compromise about Noriega. The Vatican could not force Noriega to leave. The U.S. wanted Noriega to be flown to Florida to be put on trial for smuggling drugs. Noriega faced criminal charges in Panama and the Panamanians were frightened that he would make trouble even from a prison cell. Noriega eventually went to the United States. He feared if he stayed in Panama, he may have received the death penalty. For the time being, Noriega sits in his cell and waits for his trial.

The Eastern Block in Political Change

Shouts of "freedom" and "democracy" were heard in the streets from Moscow to Prague to Warsaw. All throughout Eastern Europe governments were in a state of change.

East Germany: the historic wall, the perfect symbol of oppression, that divided East and West Germany was ready to collapse. A wall vowed to stand for 100 years, crumbled after twenty eight. In November, 1989, the people of East Germany assembled in East Berlin to protest against the long standing communist government. Their goal was to open the gates that divided them from West Germany and the rest of the world. On November 9, 1989, the world watched as the first East Germans emerged triumphant and free, no longer prisoners of their own country.

Poland: For months, Poland's Communist Party had been losing its ability to govern after more than forty years in power. For the first time in Europe's post war history, a communist government handed authority over to a non-communist opposition.

Rumania: After twenty four years of political oppression, the people of Rumania rose up against the communist dictator Ceausescu in a pro-democracy revolution. Ceausescu was arrested and executed for gross abuse of the power of the state. He was guilty of genocide, with more than "60,000" victims, and abuse of the power of the state.

Hungary: The people of Hungary held their first free election in more than forty years. Two hundred and twenty thousand Hungarians petitioned for a nation wide referendum in November and again for March parliamentary elections..

Baltic States: The people of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia rallied together to attain representation in Moscow. Mikhail Gorbachev visited the Lithuanian capitol in an effort to pacify the Lithuanian government by granting them representation in Moscow. Yet, Lithuania dared to defy Gorbachev's wishes to legalize rival political parties. Czechoslovakia: A half million Czechoslovaks gathered in downtown Prague to protest the oppressive rule of the communist government.. The largest protest in the history of Czechoslovakia raged for eight days resulting in the resignation of Communist Party leader Milos Jakes and all thirteen members of the ruling Politburo. Jakes was replaced by Karel Urbanek, party leader of the Czech republic, whose role is seen as a transition figure.

Civil War in Azerbaijan

Civil war broke out in Azerbaijan, one of the republics of the Soviet Union. It all began with the eviction of an Armenian family by Moslems in Baku, the capital. The Armenian family turned on the two men with an axe, killing one and wounding the other. The Azerbaijanans response was sheer outrage. They protested by driving thousands of Armenians from their homes. The Armenians did not silently take the violent acts. Instead, they armed themselves with weapons obtained from raids of military bases. The battle that followed was one of vengeance and rivalry.

For years the Moslem Azerbaijanans and the Christian Armenians have clashed over territory. The January battle was different, but the two groups were still fighting an old, unsettled war. The fighting escalated from a religious battle to a civil war, which forced the government to become involved. The Soviet Union was in no military condition to fight a prolonged battle.

Though the fighting died down, there remained an air of tension. Most officials agreed that subduing the entire region is highly unlikely, since nationalist hatreds and ambitions are impossible to repress, but for the time being, and with all things considered, it's as calm as to be hoped for on the Eastern Frontier.

Mandela: Free At Last

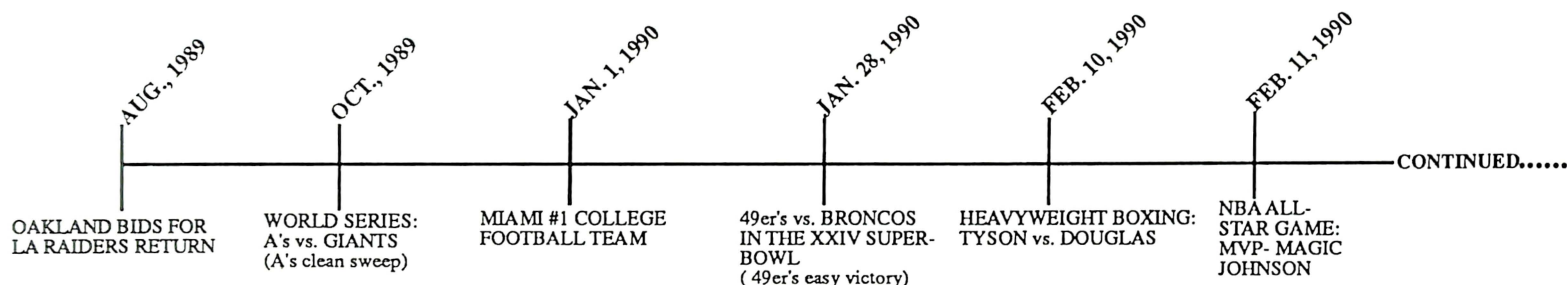

On February 11, 1990, Nelson Mandela walked out of a South African prison — free at last. After serving 26 years of a life sentence, the anti-apartheid leader was allowed to take his rightful role as the head of the previously outlawed African National Congress.

"It was a moment that a majority of South Africans, and the world, had been waiting for," said an announcer for the official South African Broadcasting Corporation. Throngs of supporters broke into thunderous cheers as the solemn, unsmiling nationalist emerged. Then a broad smile spread across his face as he raised a clenched fist in a sign of victory.

Mandela committed himself to serve as the "facilitator" for the negotiations between the black majority and the white minority government, intended to draw up a new constitution granting power to all races.

Super Bowl XXIV: Denver's Nightmare in New Orleans

Never mind the hype and predictions. Forget the hoopla. Super Bowl time had come again and on January 28, 1990, the Broncos and Niners had only one thing on their minds: WIN!! With quarterbacks like Joe Montana, maybe the greatest to ever play the position, and rifle-armed John Elway, a battle was expected. Who would have ever guessed the slaughter that actually took place?

After two weeks of countless Super Bowl specials, interviews, and speculations, kick-off time had finally arrived with the Broncos winning the coin toss. Sadly for them, that was to be the only thing they won on Super Bowl Sunday. Mike Cofer officially brought the game to a start by kicking deep to Denver's end zone and Bell returned it to the Bronco 23 yard line. Four quick plays later Denver was forced to punt. Montana and his offense took the field with classic 49er coolness and quiet confidence (they don't call him Joe Cool for nothing!) A typical San Francisco drive of ten plays proceeded the inevitable: Montana to Rice. Touchdown 49ers!

Denver's possession led to a 42 yard field goal and the Broncos were alive with hope. Little did they know they were in for a long, long game. Ten minutes later, with the score still 7-3 San Francisco, Montana connected with

Jones, again achieving this in just ten plays. At the beginning of the second quarter another unsuccessful drive by Denver gave San Francisco possession. Using their well known two-minute offense, Montana led his team to the 1 yard line in a little over a minute. Rathman dived through the middle for the T.D. Finally, three 49er touchdowns later, Elway desperately scrambled 3 yards for a bootleg touchdown. But the score was already 41-10 Niners, and as the old cliché goes: too little too late. That was the last time Denver got on the scoreboard but San Francisco wasn't done just yet. Craig and Rathman each ran for touchdowns making the final score: San Francisco 55, Denver 10. Along with this utterly ridiculous score Montana and his Niners also broke a few Super Bowl records for good measure. They included Most Touchdown Passes (5, previously 4 by Terry Bradshaw), Most Consecutive Pass Completions (13, previously 10 by Phil Simms), and 3 touchdown receptions by Rice, just to mention a few. Were the 49ers, labeled as team of the Eighties and possibly the best to grace the league of all times, satisfied with all their accomplishments? Before the final gun sounded, the chant "Three-peat! Three-peat!" could be heard in living rooms all across America.

New SF Coach

After nine years and three Super Bowl victories, Bill Walsh decided to retire as head coach of the San Francisco Forty Niners. There was much talk about who would replace Walsh and whether or not the new coach could continue the Forty Niners dominance of the 80's. Bill Walsh recommended George Seifert, a nine year assistant coach with the team. Ed DeBartolo, owner of the Forty Niners, took Walsh's suggestion. Seifert was on a plane to Cleveland for a job interview when DeBartolo called to offer him the job. Seifert's plane was delayed and when he called home his wife told him of the offer to become head coach. Seifert accepted and went on to lead the Niners to their fourth Super Bowl championship of the decade, making him only the second rookie coach to win the Super Bowl.

Tyson Out — Douglas New Champ

On February 10, 1990, James Buster Douglas staged the biggest upset in the history of boxing with his tenth round knockout of the heavyweight champion of the world, Iron Mike Tyson. With a flurry of punches, Douglas changed Iron Mike from the greatest of all-time to another ex-champion.

Buster was such a large underdog that the Las Vegas odd-makers would not put odds on his chances of winning.

"Buster" Douglas, the journeyman fisher from Columbus, Ohio became the undisputed Heavyweight Champion of the world with a career record of 30 wins, 4 losses, and 1 tie. After the fight, the 29 yr. old Douglas, whose mother died January 18, said "I wanted it for my mother. I was clearly focused. I came to fight. I fought my fight." Iron Mike's corner first disputed the results because of a slow count on Douglas in round 8. After a review, the title was awarded to Douglas.

1989 World Series — The Battle of the Bay

The World Series was the battle between the Oakland Athletics from the American League and the San Francisco Giants from the National League. It was a clean sweep for the Oakland A's. There were only a total of four games out of seven because the Giants never even came close to winning a single game. The Oakland A's dominated the Giants in both hitting and pitching. The A's wanted to show that they had overcome the unexpected loss during the previous year's championship game against the Los Angeles Dodgers in seven games.

This was the first Bay Area Series. Fans from both teams filled the ballparks. The series posed a dilemma for many Bay Area sports buffs who had to make a decision for whom to root.

Millions of fans watched the Series on TV and witnessed the 7.1 earthquake hit. It rocked the stadium and blacked out transmission just before the third game was to be played at Candlestick Park. The quake not only succeeded in shaking up the players but shook up the fans as well. The remaining games were nearly cancelled, but were eventually continued a week later at a repaired Candlestick following a decision by the baseball Commissioner.

Pete Rose

Does Betting Really Pay Off?

As gambling charges and the media engulfed him, Pete Rose awaited his fate. The smiling Pete Rose doesn't have much to smile about anymore. Fate dealt him a bad hand. Baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti announced that the Cincinnati Red's legend was banned from baseball for life, due to "conduct not in the best interest of baseball". Pete denied any wrong doing, but he thought that his punishment was fair. When asked why he had accepted a penalty, if in fact he'd never placed a bet on baseball, Rose thought for a long moment but couldn't come up with an answer.

The Hall of Fame candidate hopes to be reinstated after five years, but we wouldn't bet on it.

Lowe Charged With Sex Acts

As charges of sexual misconduct with a minor surfaced in Atlanta, Rob Lowe fled.

Lowe was at the Cannes Film Festival in France when he was told that he would be facing a lawsuit, possible criminal charges, and a fire storm of controversy ignited by a very blue video. The video included two separate steamy encounters, one with a sixteen year old Atlanta girl. Critics took the tape very seriously. Lowe could face twenty years in prison and a one hundred thousand dollar fine if charged and found guilty.

Huge Salaries

Baseball players have always been paid huge sums of money, but in 1990 players' salaries skyrocketed at a phenomenal pace. As contract negotiations opened between players and owners, there was talk of $3 million a year salaries. It wasn't long before the rumors became reality as Mark Langston signed with the California Angels for a reported $3.2 million. Soon after Mark Davis, Robin Yount, Dave Stewart and others signed contracts in excess of $3 million a year.

Even as the amazement over the rush of huge contracts was dying down a new milestone was reached. Will Clark, the Giants All-Star first baseman, agreed to a contract that gave him a base salary of $4.25 million in 1993, the top paid player in baseball and first to make over $4 million in one year.

THE LONG RUN

Faster than a speeding bullet. Stronger than steel. Able to cover treacherous terrain in a single bound. No, it's not a bird, plane, or Superman — it's the Vacaville Cross-Country Team. Yet most people would consider these athletes to be a group of superheroes. Who else could endure blisters, aching muscles, and miles of sprinting uphill in ninety degree weather? Believe it or not, these hard-working Bulldogs strived on it, and all of their hard work definitely paid off.

Thanks to the outstanding efforts of Tony Sainz, Brant Buchanan, and Chris Gale, the boys finished the M.E.L. season with a 3-3 record. The girls ended with a 6-0 record which advanced them to the Championship where they "ran away with" the M.E.L. title for the twelfth year in a row.

With the incredible support and encouragement of coaches Larsen and Dolan, how could this team lose? The elite members made up more than just a team; they were one big family. "We all help each other out, giving each other confidence," explained junior Brooke Prichard. "It makes it so you want to do it, and when you help someone it makes you feel good, too."

It can certainly be said that the Cross-Country team never failed to prove to other schools that Vaca High was #1.

"My body wanted to stop, but I wouldn't let it."

TAKING THE TITLE

Enemies one week friends the next; the Bulldog Varsity Football team cheered the Napa Indians onto victory against the Fairfield Falcons. For the Bulldogs, receiving the title in the M.E.L. layed in Napa's hands. Earlier in the season, Meko May's score in sudden death against Napa assured Vacaville of the advantage if the two teams tied at seasons end.

But if Fairfield beat Napa then the Falcons would be the champs. Napa did win and Vacaville was awarded the first seed in the post-season playoffs.

The playoff game against Atwater was the Bulldogs best game of the year. A brutal defense and a brilliant performance by Buddy Mason and Meko May resulted in a resounding 24-14 victory.

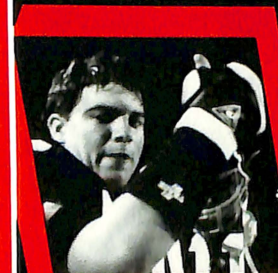

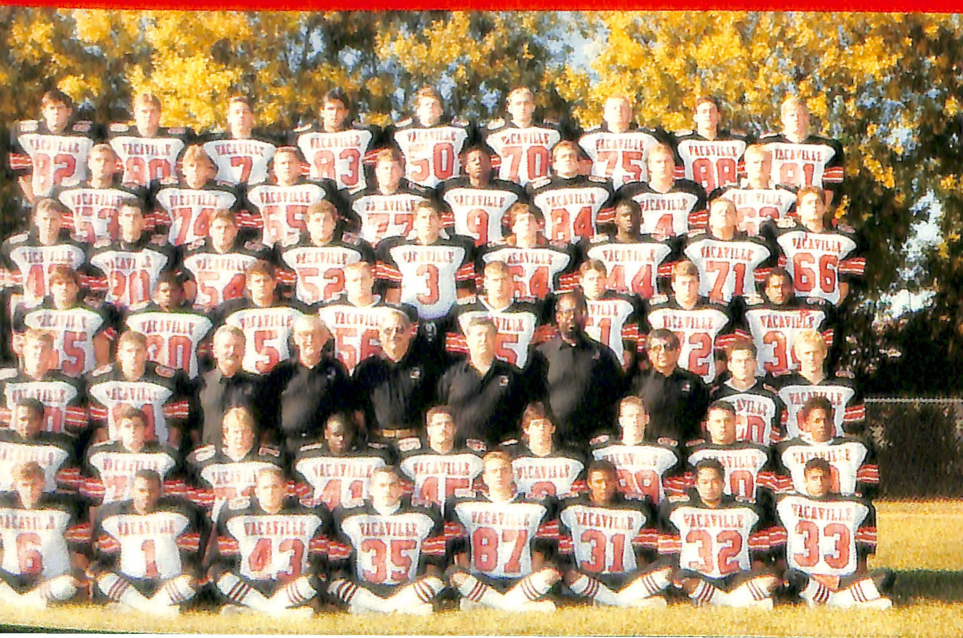

The Bulldogs would not have come this far if it were not for the long hours of practice, lunch meetings, Saturday films, and hell week. When asked about the league title, Coach Zunino said, "My men worked hard to achieve this goal. It started this summer when the players went to football camp. They became a unit and continued to play as a unit."

As a result of their hard work several players received all-league honors. Meko May earned M.E.L. Back of the Year; Ben Juricek was named Lineman of the Year; and Bobby Underwood, who set a record for field goals, was named top kicker.

Every now and then, we are burdened with the feat of failing. And every now and then, we escape the chances of failure by quitting. But some people cannot quit, relying on courage to get back up and try again.

Roy Fitzgerald is certainly an individual who does not believe in quitting. In fact is one of his main attributes. Roy was awarded the honor of greatest inspiration to the Varsity Football team. Throughout the season, he gained the admiration of his coaches and teammates. Along with drills and practices came the struggle of "hanging tough." Roy, since childhood, has had cerebral palsy and has a prosthesis in place of his right leg. But Roy does not want pity or special treatment from other people, he merely wants to point out that he was one person who set his mind to do something and accomplished it. Take it from Roy, a real winner has true devotion.

Often titled as the "Bullpups," the team knew that they were far from being "puppies." Consisting of only 32 players, they appeared to be small in size, but the size was not really the key factor to this driving force. Proving their strength and endurance in several victorious games, these young players realized that there was no limit to their capabilities. So what was the driving force for the team?

Perhaps the leadership and discipline from the coaches. During those endless practices, the coaches devoted time to help the players improve their skills. Often correcting and repeating the plays, they instinctively prepared these Bulldogs for the up-coming games. Mike Boele, head coach, was known for his locker room "pep-talks". With positive encouragement, he had gained the respect and admiration of all the players.

But the credit doesn't go to only one individual. From the brains to the body to the action, a group must work together to attain the rewards of success. Each player had to take on several positions and adjust to them. And along with the positions came the support of fellow team members. So it was clearly the "teamwork" that built the driving force. Coach Boele said, "These guys back each other up. There isn't a quitter in the bunch."

"Not a quitter in the whole bunch."

They had what it took to be excellent. Team veterans Jesse Lopez, Mike Branson, Nathan Borges, Ted Kappel, and Scott Paylor all had what it took to make a winning team. From experience they knew about the sweat, the blood, and the hours on hours of drills. They also knew the goal at the end of the line — Victory!

The Varsity Soccer Team, all twenty-one players strong, started out their season with a tie with Roseville High, the Monticello Empire League powerhouse. The Varsity players skimmed the line bringing wins, losses, and ties. Each game seemed so close, each victory, each loss, and each tie. But each game held a certain similarity — the Bulldogs put their hearts into their game. Everytime they hit the field they didn't bring back a win, but they played each game with determination and skill.

For eleven years, Coach Korman has been turning out some of the best teams in the M.E.L. With a past record of two league champion teams and five second place teams, the guiding talent of Mr. Korman deserves just recognition.

5. Eeeuuu, there's gum on the ball!

TRUE EVOTION

Outnumbered, but not overpowered, is the perfect way to describe the Vacaville High School J.V. Soccer Team. The group of only sixteen people had the impressive league record of 9-3-2 which is a great accomplishment for such a small team. Two sure-handed goalies, Ryan Schmidt and Kevin Granucci, helped to lead the powerful defense. Brad Conner and Jason Koch proved to be strong, versatile players. Phil Peterson, an active ninth grader, had improved more than anyone else on the team. Leading all these talented athletes was the top scorer of every game, Lance Penza. He always worked hard and never let the team down. Although the quantity of the team was not outstanding, the quality of the players always came through. But this team couldn't do it all, they needed leadership from their coach Mr. Terry Ward. He traveled from Markham Elementary every day after school to coach the team. He went to all this trouble because he loves this sport and he enjoys a challenge. The soccer players had a terrific season and everyone at Vacaville High School is extremely proud of them!

"The team played fantastic despite having 16 players."

BACK TO BACK

The Girls Varsity Volleyball Team went undefeated for the second year in a row. The most memorable game was played against Armijo. The victory gave coach Wettstein her 50th M.E.L. win and her 25th consecutive victory.

"It was real weird," said Kelly and Yvette.

What was so special about the team was the fact that there were only two seniors — Kelly Lomeland and Yvette Felix. When they were asked what it felt like both said, "It was real weird." Yvette went on to explain, "Mrs. Wettstein expected us to lead the team but neither of us really took control so she picked a junior, Danielle White to be the captain and it worked out great!" Kelly then added, "If there had been more seniors on the team, the season wouldn't of been as special as it was."

Once again, the Vacaville bulldogs received an award for having the M.E.L.'s most valuable player. The award went to senior Kelly Lomeland, the team's setter.

Next year's volleyball team will have many returning players. Will that team be able to carry on the winning streak? As they say, "Third time's a charm."

PIKE THOSE UPPIES

It was fascinating to watch the Lady Bullpups in action. The way they put their teamwork, ability and style into motion, adding points to the scoreboard was truly awesome Teamwork. This is one key word that described the Junior Varsity Volleyball Team. They used this skill to win many of their games.

In one particular game, teamwork brought the team to a 15-2 victory over Vallejo. It was exuberating to watch them all work together as one. Chants such as "Get it back!" and "Keep it up!" echoed off the walls during the game. Every time a point was scored the team members congratulated each other.

"Get It Back", Orange and Black

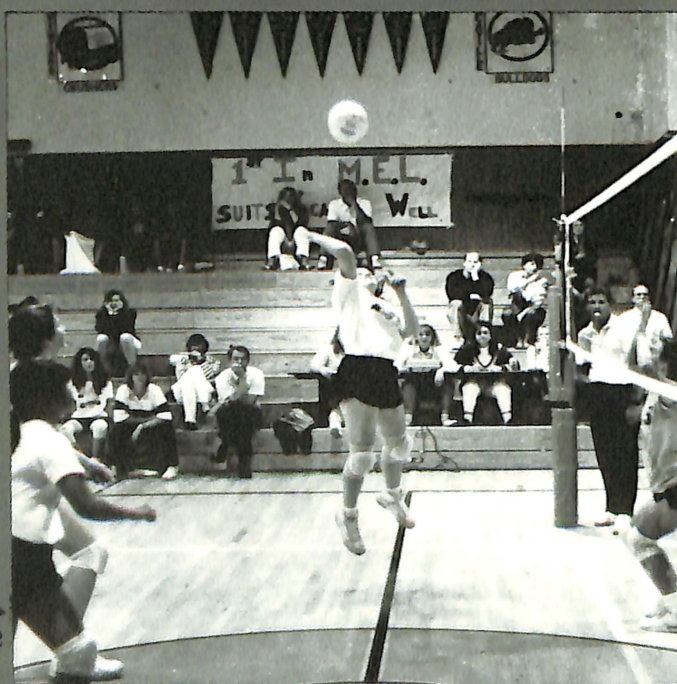

Each time a player tried their best, but just couldn't make the play, the whole team was there telling her she made a great try and to keep up the good work.

The coaches, Ms. Campbell and Mr. Wettstein, did a wonderful job in pulling this team together as one. The effort that was put into making the team united was really evident.

Captain Christi Goodoff must also get credit for her wonderful job of keeping the team spirit alive. The entire team excelled in spirit, as well as in teamwork, and their abilities on the court showed this fact every time they played.

BULLDOGS

"Starting for the Fairfield Falcons . . . Vince Shaw . . ." The visitor side of the gymnasium erupted in loud wails of excitement while the home side raised their newspapers feigning disinterest in the Falcons starting players. "and for the Vacaville Bulldogs, number twenty one, T.C. Cunningham . . ." A complete reversal of roles as claps, cheers and whistles were heard from the home side as the visitor side sat poised, papers raised, awaiting the beginning of the game.

One of the bulldogs most exciting games, was against the Fairfield Falcons. The bulldogs went into the game with a record of 3-1 in the MEL and 13-4 overall. The immense pressure to beat Fairfield and remain ahead in the MEL pushed the Bulldogs to their ensuing victory. Vacaville never trailed throughout the game, but Fairfield met each onset with determination. T.C. Cunningham led the Bulldogs with a game high of nineteen points. Vacaville closed the first quarter with a 10-2 lead. But by the end of the half the eight point margin had depleted to 33-32, Bulldogs.

The 1989-1990 Vacaville Bulldogs Boys Varsity Basketball Team has proven that adjusting to a new coach hasn't effected their performance. Coach Mark Wudel worked equally well with the team. The team played with aggression and style, adding point after point to the scoreboard. The team worked together as a unit helping each other out and giving their all. This years Varsity Basketball team had shown that they had what it takes to be a number one team.

B EYOND GRAVITY

With a little energy and a lot of motivation, a team can make anything happen. And, certainly, that was true for this year's Girls Varsity Basketball Team. With Larry Baker as head coach, these young players challenged themselves with an effort beyond gravity. One account was the 47-46 victory over Fairfield in the 3rd place game at the Lodi Tournament. With plenty of hoop revenge and quick action, the players were able to rise above their opponents.

"We played with a lot of intensity," says Coach Baker. And along with the intensity came the obstacles and errors to overcome on the court. Putting a few unlucky games behind them,

We always push to do our best.

the girls still pushed for improvement and supported one another. In an interview with the players, Dani Fennel said, "We always push ourselves to do our best." At the end of the season mistakes are not so important. It's not so much where we are going but what direction we are moving.

AIR BULLDOGS

Just as this is the start of a new decade with a new principal, these are new beginnings for the Junior Varsity Boys basketball team. They've been blessed with the coming of a somewhat new coach. Gone are the days of Tro-linger's reign, because this is now Coach Hor-ri-gan's domain!

Mark Horrigan eagerly took over this coaching job when asked. This was nothing new to him be-cause he coached several of our J.V. teams in the past. One thing he strongly en-forces is positive work ethic. At practice, the boys have fun, but are expected to give a wholehearted ef-fort- which means giving one hundred percent. This hard work obviously paid off in their games.

The success of the team was partly due to the great offensive work of Brad Kamman and Justin Boy-kin. The team could always count on them to come through with the crucial baskets.

However, there was no one person who was the star of the team. Coach

Horrigan gave everybody the opportunity to play and show their stuff. "Ev-ery member of the team is important," states Horri-gan, "And that's why I try not to designate any cer-tain person as most impor-tant because he scores the most points."

They will be back next year, ready to use their tal-ents on the varsity squad. Go get 'em, boys!

"Every member of the team is im-portant."

Kill! Kill! Kill! The battle cry echoed in the gym as the J.V. Girls Basketball Team hustled after the ball. The pass was deflected by Michelle Johnson and she raced down the court to make a successful lay-up. The girls were definitely pumped up with victory just in grasp. Moments later the Lady Bulldogs were back on offense and the speedy point guard, Christi Goodoff, dribbled down court. Outrunning the defense, she penetrated the key to make a sharp pass to a post, Holly Pratt. Pratt faked a shot, then bounce passed to Eden Sell who swiftly put the ball up. The final seconds were ticking off the clock and swoosh! The game was over and Vacaville had won. These high-paced games were not considered rare for this team. Their speed and determination helped them to withstand the intensities of the games and whatever the circumstances, they never gave up. This winning attitude didn't just happen by accident, it was developed as the girls grew together as a team. The closeness was apparent in the way the team came together to pull out the win. To borrow a phrase from Nike, they just did it.

LEGACY OF CHAMPIONS

If you had asked what the strong point of this year's wrestling team was, you might have heard a reply like "the team itself". The legacy of the Vaca High's wrestlers have maintained over the years can be seen plastered on the wrestling room walls. Pictures of hundreds of wrestlers who have captured titles ranging from league champions to state champions can be seen. Vaca High has dominated the MEL by capturing the championship every year since 1977.

Leading the matmen this year were varsity wrestlers Chris Miller, Joe Strusinski, Tony Rardin, Torrance Wade and Ed Rapisarda.

For the second year in a row, Vaca High had the honor of hosting the International All-Star High School Wrestling Team from Japan. Of our eleven wrestlers, two were victorious in the world classic match. Chris Miller out-muscled his Japanese opponent in a 3-1 victory. And Torrance Wade pinned the Japanese wrestler with 1:51 remaining.

"No one to blame but yourself"

After watching a wrestling match, many people might think that wrestling is not a team sport. But the wrestlers themselves would disagree with you. Ed Rapisarda said, "We're a unified team. But when you're out on the mat, if you win, you win on your own, but if you lose, you lose on your own too. There is no one to blame but yourself."

ALL FIRED UP

"We know what has to be done, we know how to do it, and nothing is going to hold us back!" Sounds like the coaches pep-talk, but it isn't. It was the theme for this years Varsity Baseball team. To learn how to play well together, the Bulldogs put in overtime at practices. Returning pitcher, Shane Rodriguez, felt that, "The key here is experienced teamwork."

The coaches were also full of praise for the team. Coach O'Malley praised the teams unbeatable attitude. "Even when things happened that weren't the best, the guys didn't let it keep them down, they bounced right back more determined than ever."

Even with all the praise, the guys didn't take full credit. Returning player, Chad Collins, proudly gave credit to his coaches. "I owe a lot to the coaches. I've learned more from these guys than I could ever say."

The players and the coaches unanimously agreed that no one person could be credited for a successful team. They felt that hard work, dedication from everyone, an all fired up spirit and the desire to win makes a team a success.

VARSDITY BASEBALL

MORE THAN JUST A TEAM

This years J.V. Baseball team worked hard to live up to Coach Pierson's expectations and give him what he demanded: 110%, hustle, and the dedication to work as a team. The intense practices were always filled with a little playing' around. But they were tough; a lot of hitting and game team situations helped the team when it came down to the real thing.

Many of the players have had the opportunity to play together before, but there were a few newcomers in the ranks. Kevin Granucchi stated, "We had a lot of talent. It took a little time to bring it all together and adjust to one another. But there was always a lot of team support."

Justin Boykin felt that, "We're more than just a team. We're a family. We're there for each other on and off the field. When the sport is finally over, it is like losing a brother."

BATting A HOUSAND

Many challenges faced the young V.H.S. Varsity Softball Team. The players were new and there was only one full time pitcher. Yet the team members felt that winning the league championship this year would be a breeze.

There were many reasons for the softball teams success. One was the confidence that the players projected. At practice, the team members had fun working together. Yet at the games, the girls were ready to defeat.

Another reason for success was the coaches, Mrs. Wara and Mrs. Mumaugh. As team member Kristi

They made lasting friendships.

Waldren stated, "Our coaches help and support us so much. We especially like the fact that the coaches actually play with us, and show us what they want us to do."

For the seniors, 1990 was their last season. The girls made lasting friendships with their teammates. Being a part of the team was a memory that they will hold forever as one of the best times of their lives.

BATTER UP

As the smell of the dirty, grass-stained leather hit me, I immediately felt the tightening grip around my body. The air whistled past me as I was swung for practice. I could faintly hear the heartbeat of the batter as I was carried up to the plate. The crowd had suddenly gotten quiet; the only sounds were the chatter of the defense and the cheering from the dugout. My heart raced with anticipation as I was brought up to rest against the batter's shoulder. The pitcher wound up and released. Whoosh! Ball one. I breathed a sigh of relief and braced myself for the next pitch. Before I knew it I was racing through the air. The distance between the ball and I was becoming ing shorter and shorter. Right before impact, I saw the ugly sneer on the ball's face and was determined to knock it off. With a satisfying crack the ball was sent flying into left field. I was thrown aside and the batter quickly rounded the bases. The crowd was on its feet yelling, "All right, Vacaville! Way to go!"

Can't a bat get any credit anymore?

G F ETTIN' UNKY

"Funky!" That de- scribed this year's Girls' Tennis Team. "Yeah, we were funky," said Rachel Eubanks. "We had the look and some really great players."

The team finished with 10 wins and 2 losses, a Vaca High record, and good enough for second place in the M.E.L. This finish was credited to the great play of Jerica Hatcher, Michelle Pilon, and the doubles team of Amiee Higgins and Danielle DiBenedetto. Coach Lopez relied heavily upon these players to always come through with a win.

In post-season play,

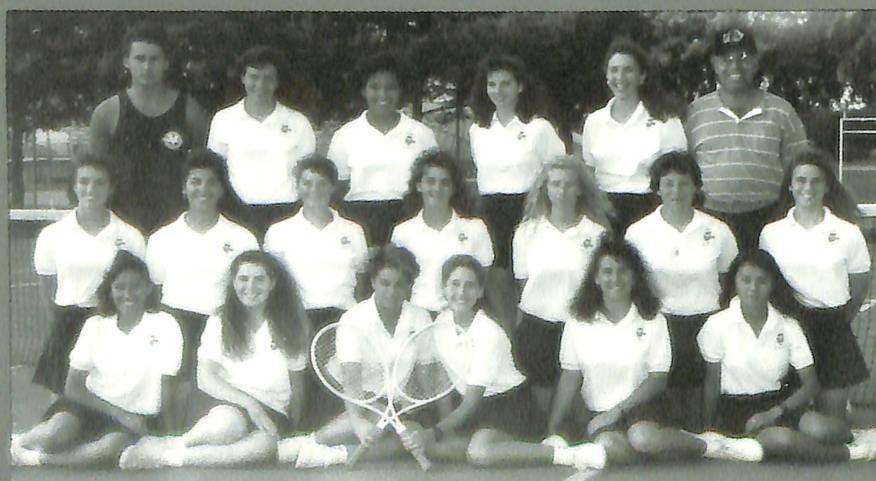

Tamra White, the number one singles player, and Jerica Hatcher teamed up to play doubles in the M.E.L. tournament. They placed second to Armijo and received All-League honors. They advanced to the Sac-Joaquin sections, where they made it to the quarterfinals but lost to the top seeded doubles team.

Yes, this year's girls' team was awesome. Everyone had a good attitude and gave 100% to the team. In a quick summary, they came, they saw, and they conquered!

WAKIN' UP

Did you see those guys out on the tennis courts in their flashy new shirts and fresh Nike Airs? Well, they were our Varsity Boys Tennis team. They came back this year new, improved, and better than ever!

When the boys stepped out onto our home courts Coach Lopez was really impressed. He felt that this was definitely the best team he has ever coached. The guys on the team were very positive about their season. Most felt that there was more of a family attitude present. "People seemed to have gotten along a lot better, so we were all basically friends," commented Craig Baldwin, "we had fun."

Of course, the season wasn't all fooling around.

These guys worked hard to get to their standing. So summed up Brian Holmen, "Many people think that tennis is an easy sport, but it takes a true athlete and a lot of hard work to become good."

"It takes a true athlete to become good."

MAKING WAVES

Picture yourself surrounded by a sandy beach with the warm sun overhead as you dive into the 70 degree water. Wouldn't this be great, day after day? Now just subtract the sand and about ten degrees from the water, and you'll have the average practice session of the Vaca High Swim Team. However these were not all fun and games. Meeting every day for two months, these athletes worked hard to condition themselves and perfect their strokes.

"We never fail to have fun!"

Meets were very competitive. The teammates were always fighting to beat their opponents as well as racing to improve their own personal records.

Most of the team returned from last year. There were a few newcomers, including coach Dave Richards. The teammates became one big family, everyone eager to support each other. This alone made them winners.

DIVER'S EDUCATION

Ever wonder what it takes to be on an award winning diving team? Ask and you'll hear, lots of practice. The Vaca High team practiced hard for eight weeks, rain or shine. They had to overcome any fears they had of criticism, heights, or every diver's nightmare, hitting their head on the diving board.

How does one learn how to do a double reverse in the pike position? The answer: good ol' trial and error. "The coach explains what we need to do, and we go out and try it. It takes a lot of practice to perfect just one dive."

However, all of their hard work really shined through when it came down to competition. Divers are scored from 1 to 10, based on difficulty and performance. Everyone would agree that the Vaca High Diving team was definitely a 10.

"It takes a lot of practice..."

RIGHT ON BACK

Practicing over an hour a day, nearly five days a week, is ultimately an excruciating workout for a group of track team members. Taking laps around the track and a jog around the park is enough to exhaust any individual. But the 1990 track athletes were different from the rest. They took the long strides and heavy haul to increase their phenomenal endurance. Aching muscles, perspiration, and a short gasp of breath were just a part of the their daily workout. But the efforts of their hard work outlasted throughout the seasons.

"Preparing long and hard."

Along with the team members were the coaches: Mike Larsen, Larry Baker, Mark Wudell, and Brian Dolan. Under their direction, the members were pushed to go further and further each day to excel in their endurance. They certainly prepared long and hard for meets, and it is to these young athletes that we congratulate for being right on track.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW

The game was about to start. Day after day, I had practiced for this moment. How would I hold up under all of this pressure?

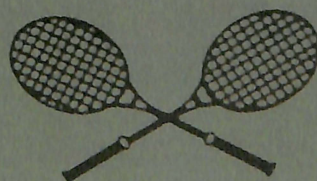

The toss was made, up I went. My team made the first hit, sending me over the net and down onto my nose. One point for my team! There was nothing to this.

I was tossed up again, only this time I stayed up for hours. I never thought I was going to land, but when I did I was sorry. I was sitting in the middle of our court. How would I be able to show my birdie fan in the closet?

Then the last round finally came. No matter what, I had to land in the opponents court. Boom! I had landed. Where was I and did we win were my only questions. Then I heard the crowd. My team had won! Now, I would be able to sit in the closet with pride.

"Badminton is a sport of true skill."

BEHIND THE LINES

"Twentythree ... thirty six ... Hike!" The ball was snapped into the hands of the waiting quarterback. She dropped back, looked for an open receiver and threw a short pas ... the receiver jumped up, caught the football and tucked it tightly to her chest. She pivoted, still in motion, and as she began her race to the end-zone. The opposition reached out and grasped her flags and pulled them off with a fierce battery.

This was the scene of the big Juniors vs. Seniors Powder Puff football game. For one night each year, the males and females trade places to get a behind the lines view. While the girls are out on the field doing drills and running plays, the boys are taking a crash course in cheerleading. With only two weeks to prepare, the Senior Powder Puff cheerleaders Sean Mays, Sean Kane, Jeff Dodds, Elbert Howard and mascot Mike Isbell practiced after school learning words, rhythm and movements of what seemed to be an endless amount of cheers.

On November 30th, the night of the big game, Yvette Felix scored the only touchdown giving the girls of 1990 a record of 2-0. The Juniors still have next year to prove they have what it takes. The final score was

Seniors

Thirteen Years of Anticipation

Sitting in the cap and gown, waiting to hear your name.
Thirteen years of anticipation.
Now nothing will be the same.

Gone are the days of Homecoming, and room six tardy passes.
No more walks down those halls headed for our dreaded classes.

We've bid our friends farewell on our Senior photos.
The day we leave as graduates to places no one knows.

Suddenly lunch in the Senior square is an event of the distant past.
Thirteen years of anticipation
Graduation day came at last.

Faculty

ALL I EVER REALLY NEEDED TO KNOW I LEARNED IN KINDERGARTEN

All I really needed to know about how to live and what to do and how to be I learned in kindergarten. Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate school mountain, but there in the sandbox at kindergarten. These are some of the things I learned:

Share Everything.

Play fair.

Don't hit people.

Put things back where you found them.

Clean up your own mess.

Don't take things that aren't yours.

Say you're sorry when you hurt somebody.

Wash your hands before you eat.

Flush.

Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you.

Live a balanced life - learn some and think some and draw and paint and sing and dance and play and work every day some.

Take a nap every afternoon.

When you go out into the world, watch for traffic, hold hands, and stick together.

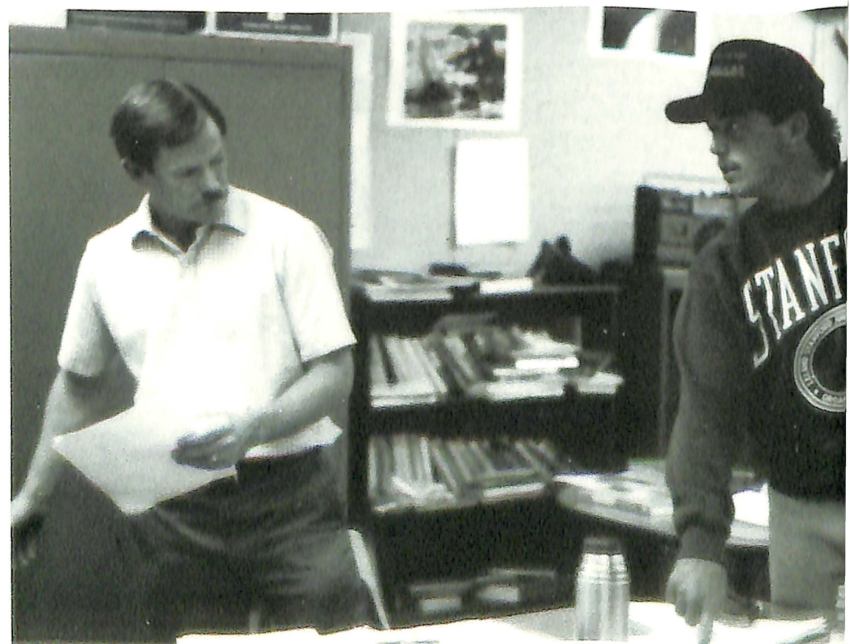

Be aware of wonder. Remember the little seed in the styrofoam cup: the roots go down and the plant goes up and nobody really knows how or why, but we are all like that.

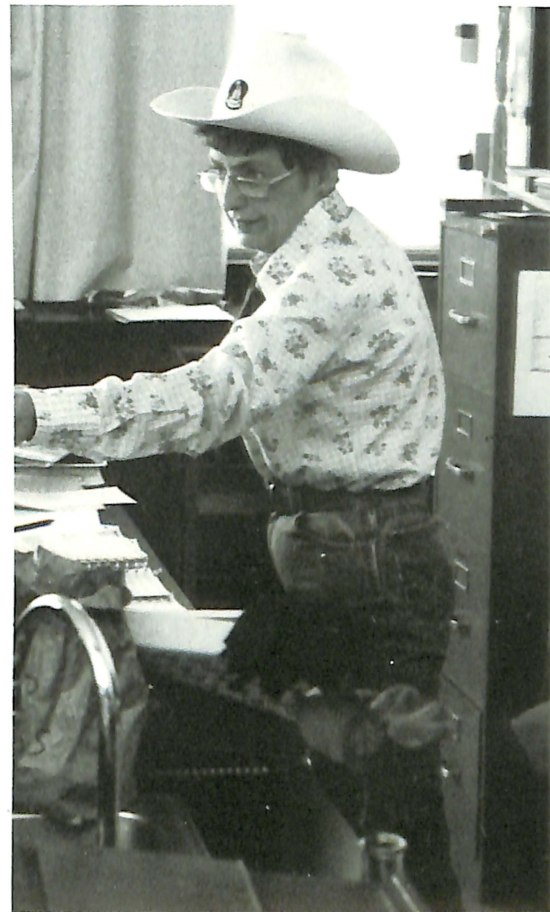

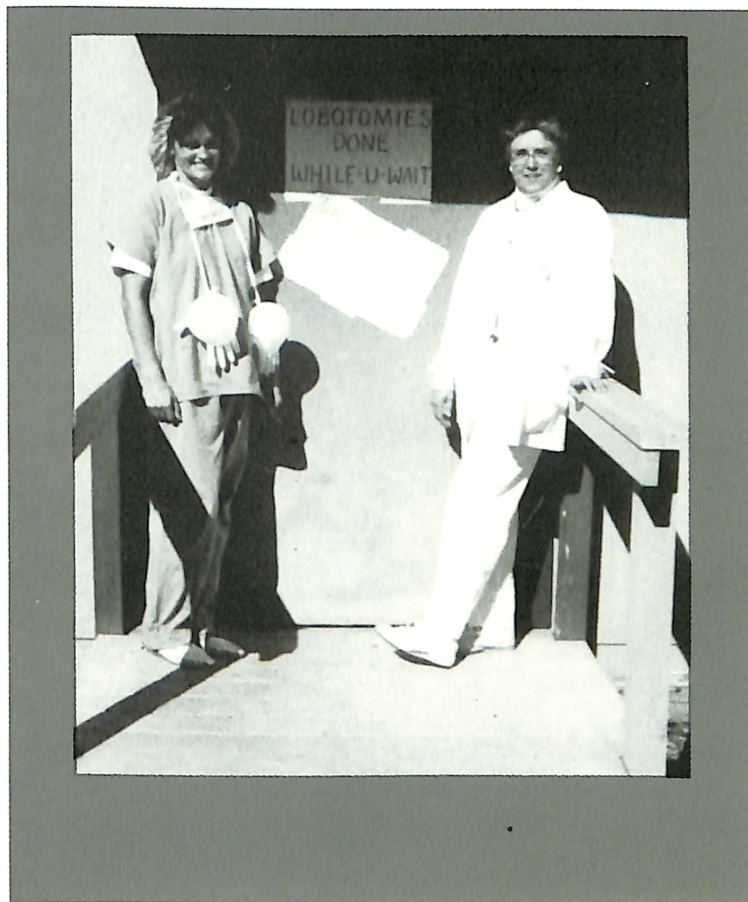

Goldfish and hamsters and white mice and even the little seed in the styrofoam cup - they all die. So do we.

And then remember the Dick and Jane books and the first word you learned - the biggest word of all - LOOK

Everything you need to know is there somewhere. The Golden Rule and love and basic sanitation. Ecology and politics and equality and sane living. Think of what a world it would be if we all - the whole world - had cookies and milk about three o'clock every afternoon and then lay down with our blankies for a nap. Or if all our governments had as a basic policy to always put things back where they found them and to clean up their own messes.

And it is still true, no matter how old you are - when you go out into the world, it is best to hold hands and stick together.

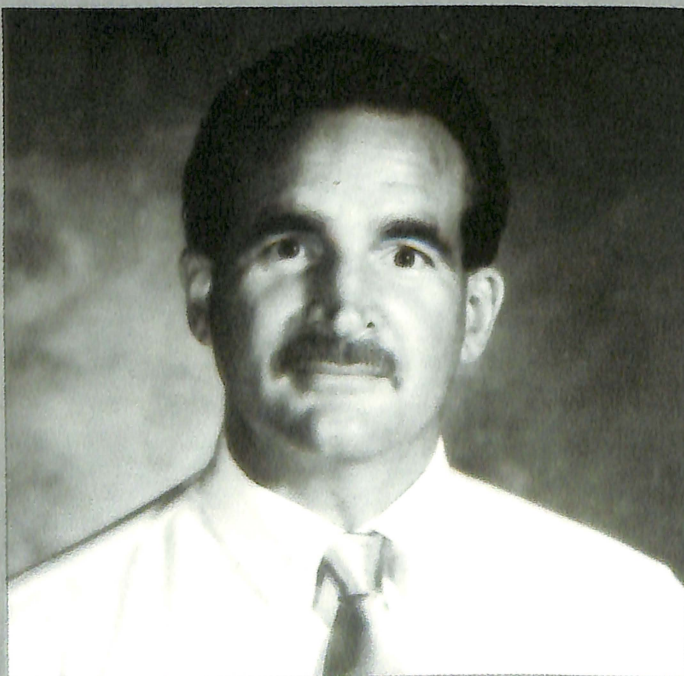

If there is a difference between where you are and where you want to be...

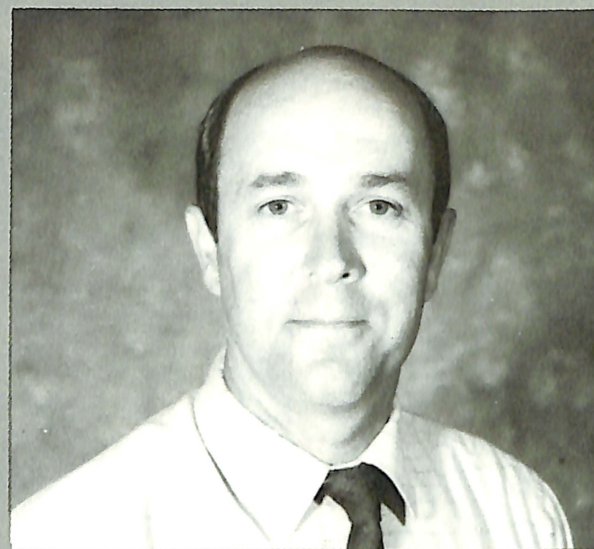

"The Difference is Attitude..."

The new decade brought many changes for the students of Vacaville High School. The arrival of Ernie Boone, our new principal, brought many changes in policy, procedure, attitude, and staff. For those who were willing to work hard, Mr. Boone was a gift. The teaching staff held morning meetings regularly. Mr. Boone was seen in the halls, the classrooms, the cafeteria, the Senior Square, and the parking lot. His door was open to anyone. He was there for students and staff alike.

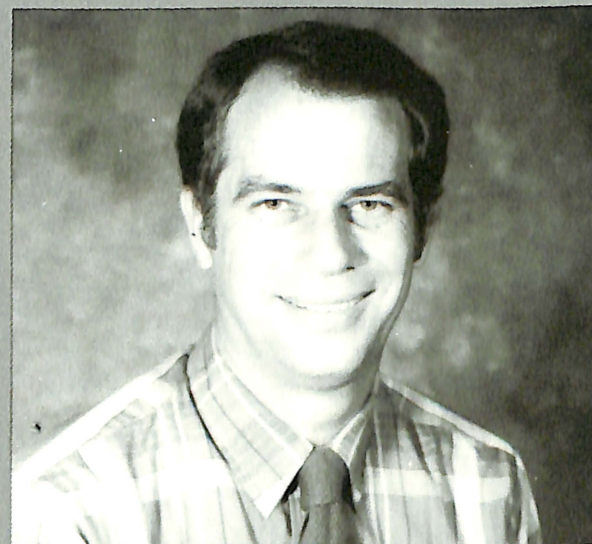

Mr. Boone wanted to make a difference. Schoolwide rules were introduced and enforced. Attendance became a major issue. Students who had worked hard in achievement were recognized in assemblies as Vaca High's Top Dogs. Special Assemblies were held to promote a drug-free campus. And in every classroom hung a sign reading "If there is a difference between where you are and where you want to be ... the difference is attitude." The difference at Vaca High was the new commitment that was unofficially made by students and staff alike. We here at Vacaville High School had become Committed to Excellence.

S Club

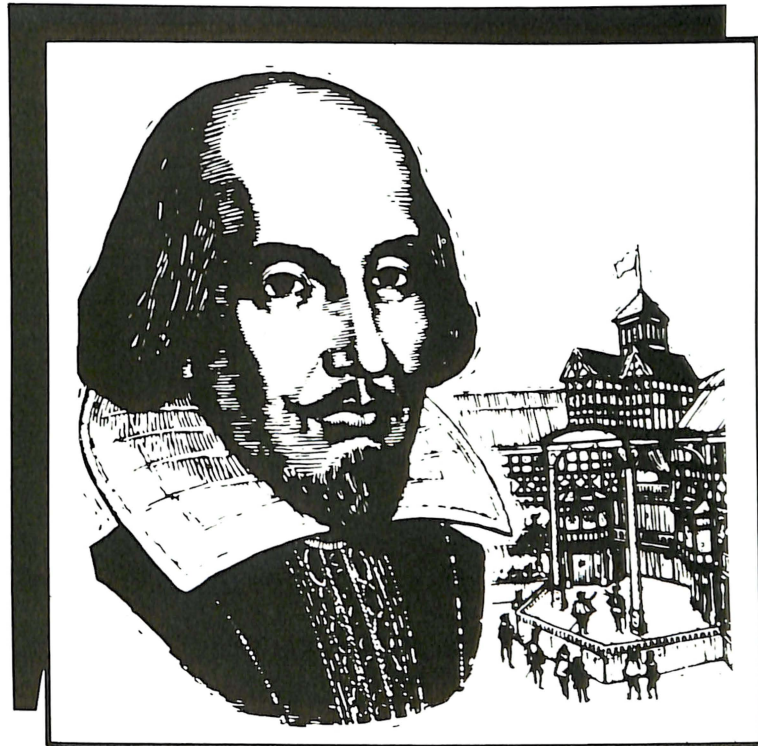

The members of S-Club definitely kept themselves busy throughout the year. Doing everything from escorting residents of Winsor House Convalescent Hospital on a trip to the Nut Tree Pumpkin patch, to selling programs at football games. They visited local elementary schools to spread the word on having a "Safe Halloween" and prepared the annual S-Club conference. All of their activities were successful. Led by President Heather Nerbovig and advisor Mrs. Barclay, these Vaca High students were dedicated toward helping others and making the world a better place. Teenagers are too often stereotyped as selfish, but the members of the S-Club have certainly proved this wrong.

Drama Club

Few experiences compare to the thrill of theater. Being on stage, or working behind the scenes, demands a one hundred percent effort and concentration. For true actors, and crew alike, conflicting egos are never a problem. The club's advisor, Mrs. Edwards, is no exception. Her knowledge and experience is shared; without lecturing. The members of this club are like that of a family. They are always working together to bring fun and excitement to Vacaville High, and overall, provides a great learning experience to future actors and actresses.

SCIENCE CLUB

CSF

For a club where students were required to apply and be accepted to become a member, it was pretty outstanding that the California Scholarship Foundation was one of the largest organizations on campus. Membership was based on academic excellence, however most of the members were also active in leadership and extra-curricular activities. Organized by Ms. Gearhart as advisor, and President Jeni Re, this group knew how to have fun, while at the same time striving to bring out the best. The year included bake sales, field trips, a blanket drive for earthquake victims, and scholarship awards for dedicated members. These students took pride in CSF, and they definitely deserved the great rewards they received from this great club.

SPANISH CLUB

Last summer, the Foreign Travel Club, a branch of the Spanish Club, traveled to Spain. The Trip was a reward for their fund raising efforts during the school year. While in Spain the club members visited several cities, including the capital city of Madrid. The highlight of the tour was a visit to the future site of the 1992 Olympics. Cobi, the mascot of the Olympics, was one of the most exciting personalities.

This year, the Foreign Travel Club will be returning to Spain for three weeks. They plan to stay with families exchange student style. The graduating seniors will pass on their legacy to the other members and, hopefully, trips to Spain will become as common as football games at Vaca High!

LITERARY GUILD

The start of a new decade brought many new and exciting things to Vaca High. A new principal, new basketball coach, and a new club, "The Literary Guild." This group met every Monday at lunch to put together The Gallery. The Gallery is a magazine of short stories, poems, and essays written by students, teachers, and alumni. The idea of creating a Literary Guild at Vaca High was derived by Mr. Jensen, one of the English teachers at Vaca High, Marci Stickler and Damon Reed, two students at Vaca High. The whole staff contribute greatly to the magazine and we are glad that it was a great success!

“Having a problem? Need some advice? Wouldn’t you rather talk to someone your own age who understands what you are going through?” It wasn’t hard to find someone that fit this description. The answer to our problems laid in the hands of the Peer Counselors of Vaca High. The group of Peer Counselors consisted of seven highly educated and experienced students, Essence Tonic, Rená Duffel, Jason Johnson, Erica Tharp, Elyzabeth Towner, and Anthony Madonna. Their advisors are Ms. Aquino, and Mr. T. When asked how they liked their positions as Peer Counselors they all agreed it was a good experience and a lot of fun.

KEY CLUB

Key Club is a community service organization sponsored by the Vacaville Kiwanis Club. They have provided a variety of services which included volunteering at the United Way Telethon, distributing candy at the Vacaville Christmas tree lighting, and volunteering at the Special Olympics.

One of the highlights for the members is the annual convention in Los Angeles. Unfortunately, only about ten members can attend, so they are chosen based upon the amount of services they contribute. Since the Key Club is a close knit group, everyone is happy for the ones lucky enough to attend. Besides, their entire goal is to make our community a better place, and they do.

ACADEMIC DECATHLON

Academic Decathlon. What exactly is it? This is a team, in a sense, but not an athletic one. It is one based on academics. There are nine members on the Decathlon squad and they compete in a county-wide competition. They compete by taking tests in eight subject areas and delivering two speeches. The subjects consist of Chemistry and Biology, Economics, Math, Social Science, Fine Arts, a prepared speech, an impromptu speech, and the Super Quiz. The "Super Quiz" is the most exciting of the tests. Each member of the team must go up on stage and answer questions on a certain topic. Really scary when you're in front of an auditorium full of spectators!

This year's team was made up of four returnees and five newcomers. The people returning from last year's medal winning team were Lucinda Leung, Laura Thurmond, Tamra White, and Chris Silva. Joining the team this year were Jeff Allen, Andrea Saint Ives, Jim Downs, Curt Zirzow, and Eric Haddox. The team also was given a new coach for the year — Mr. Mack.

STUDENTS FOR PEACE

The Students for Peace have changed their focus from protesting nuclear bombs to protecting the environment. All year the club has been organizing a program with the Vacaville Sanitation Service, and have managed to get a dumpster placed on campus to recycle white paper. The club's facilitator, Justin Rasmussen, made sure there were white paper boxes in every classroom during finals week. Will the club use the money to take an extended vacation, or have a massive pizza party? No way! This club plans to buy an acre of the tropical rain forest, thus insuring the survival of thousands of trees. The Students for Peace not only provided the students a place to throw unwanted paper away, but in the process were helping to save the environment.

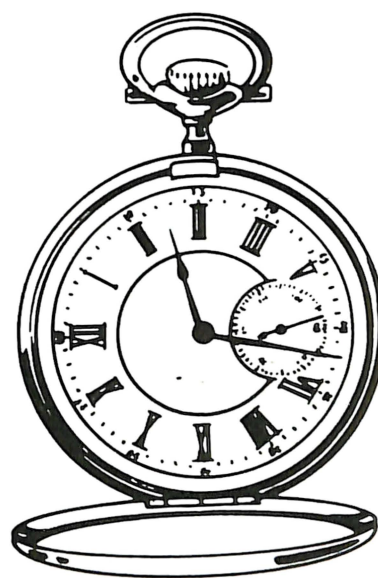

First row: Justin Rasmussen — Facilitator. Second row: Dean-A Burch, Jean Davis — Propaganda — Assistant Facilitator, Liz Silva — Treasurer, Andrea Miller — Club Baker, Stacey Hay — Club Baker. PHILOSOPHY CLUB

Is there a God? This one question weighed on the minds of Philosophy Club members for almost three months. Along with this topic, they questioned the meaning of space and time and the existence of life on other planets.

The entire purpose of the Philosophy Club is to explore and question the unexplainable. This year's members did an excellent job of that. No one knows if any of these things will ever be explained. The answers remain unknown.

GIRLS' VOCAL ENSEMBLE

SELECT SINGERS

O' say can you see . . . these are the words that were heard so many times by fans at all the home football games. The Select Singers are a special group that sing harmoniously to create those joyful sounds!

Becoming a Select Singer is a long and tedious process. Before you can become a Select Singer you have to be in Concert Choir. After Concert Choir, comes Girls' Ensemble. Once you have made it through Girls' Ensemble you're on your way to being a Select Singer. This third and final step is a big one, but their dedication and hard work pays off in the end.

THE BARK

Extra, extra, read all about it! All right, here's the scoop. Vaca High's finest have banded together to write, type, copy, report, edit, photograph, and produce our school newspaper, the BARK. All of this in an effort to keep its readers up to date on the latest at Vaca High.

This was not as easy as it might sound. These aspiring Lois Lanes and Jimmy Olsons always had their eyes out for the perfect story, everything from movie reviews, to conquering the S.A.T., to curing acne. There were people to interview, layouts to create, stories to write, and every reporter's nightmare, deadlines to meet.

The staff was a part of the sixth period News Production class, and distributed 1,500 copies of each issue to the faculty, students, and community free of charge. In its thirtieth year of production, the 1990 staff, led by Advisor Mr. Ray and Editor Jennifer Gothard, did their best to satisfy what our "enquiring minds wanted to know".

The Staff That Makes It Work

The class was yearbook and the time was fifth period. The atmosphere was tense enough that one could cut it with a knife. There was a deadline due in approximately two hours. That meant a weekend would most likely be sacrificed.

One may think it's insane to give up a weekend, but what would they say if their yearbooks weren't ready and had to be mailed to them after school was out. How would they feel if the task of signing these books were taken away? Yet no fear, for this is the staff that makes it possible and makes everything fall into place. A weekend or two of pleasure sacrificed is no comparison to what they feel when the books are handed out and they see others marvel over their work.

This staff along with Mr. Swenerton puts their life on hold in order to create a book of memories that lasts forever. This is the staff that made it all happen.

1. "Can't you see, I'm working on a deadline," says Mr. Swenerton.
2. Melogen Funk thinks, "I'll never get through this deadline."
3. "He did what with my pictures?" asks Liz Cox.
4. Nicole Strom and Dee Conner diligently working.
5. "Where did you say you put my layout?" asks Jeni Re.
6. "Guess what guys!" exclaims Theresa Parker, "We don't have to work this weekend."

9. "What am I supposed to write, when I wasn't even at the Christmas Ball?" wonders Andy Horita.

11. "I know I'm good," says Catina Wolett.

James Bailey,

You're a very special young man and have made your family very proud. You've always done well with anything you've ever set out to accomplish and I'm sure you always will. Your honesty and consideration for others and your mature attitudes are great assets and you'll always be loved and appreciated by your friends and family. We wish you all the happiness and success that you so greatly deserve.

Love,
Your Family

To Our Dear Daughter Lorin,

As you graduate from high school, the future becomes yours. All of the possibilities are within you! Your future depends only on you. Often, life will seem impossible, somewhat like your 79 Olds, but, just like that car, if you try a little harder and work with it, a miracle occurs and it works. Miracles are there, just waiting to happen for you. Our prayer is that you will let God be your guide. Believe in yourself, if you do you will succeed in whatever you are led to do in life. Love life, live each day to its fullest and, most importantly, never forget that we will always be there for you.

We are proud of what you have accomplished during your three years at Vaca High:

Earning your letter in both choir and band by your junior year.
Being in Solano County Honor Band in your sophomore year.
Being chosen as a member of the concert choir in your sophomore, junior, and senior years.
Chosen for "Select Singers" in both your junior and senior years.
Having a named role in the musicals for three years!
All while being in college prep and taking an "A" period to participate in band and choir!

We are extremely proud of all your accomplishments and we love you dearly! With our love and blessing,

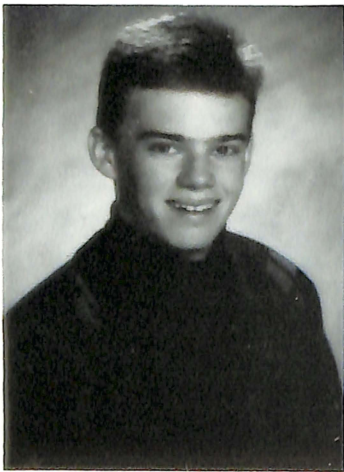

Dad and Mom

BEING FRIENDS COMES SO NATURALLY TO US WE'RE ALWAYS THERE FOR EACH OTHER, AND IT'S NEVER A CHORE, IT'S DONE FROM DESIRE; NEVER AN EFFORT BUT ALWAYS A PLEASURE.

WE'VE BEEN FRIENDS FOR QUITE AWHILE NOW, AND I'M SURE THAT YOU KNOW WHAT I MEAN WHEN I SAY THAT — THE MEMORIES THAT WE'VE GOT ARE SOME OF THE FINEST I EVER HOPE TO HAVE. IT MAKES ME GLAD TO THINK THAT YOU'LL BE WITH ME AND I'LL BE WITH YOU AS FRIENDS ... TO FACE THE NEW TIMES AHEAD, TO SHARE THE WONDERS THEY WILL BRING, TO COMFORT WHATEVER TRIALS THEY MAY HOLD. IT'S NICE TO KNOW YOU'LL ALWAYS HAVE ME CARING FOR YOU, AND I'LL ALWAYS HAVE YOU JUST A THOUGHT AWAY!

Notes From The Editors

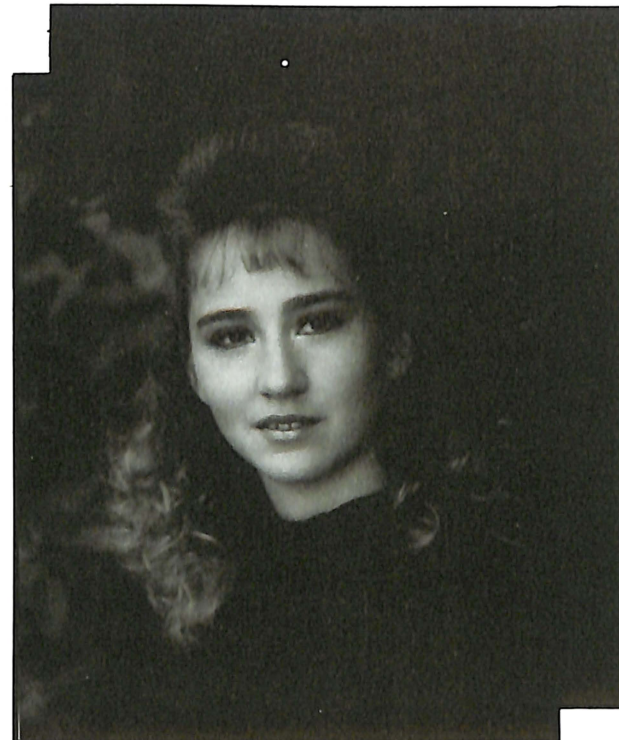

I can't believe that it is over. Not only the completion of the yearbook, but my years of Vaca High. It went by so fast and yet so much has happened. After three years of being on staff, this was the best that I have ever had. Maybe it was because everyone who worked on the book took pride in what they were doing. They put their all into their work. No matter what, I am thankful that it went so well.

I would like to thank the people who made this book what it is. This year's staff was the best. There were no bad clicks or conflicts. Sure, there were a few tifs, but all in all they acted like a family and gave anyone who entered the class that impression. These people were great and I hope they know it.

Above all, I would like to thank Mr. Swenerton, Theresa Parker, Nicole Strom, and Tim Samolis. Without these people, I don't know what I would have done. They were my backbone when I was sick, my crutch when I was shaky, and my best friends when I was sad and needed someone. This may sound very mushy, but how else would I tell these people how I feel? Thanks everyone.

Jamarra Cantunright

I would like to use this page as an opportunity to thank everyone on the 1990 Ulati Yearbook Staff for making this book possible. In a sense everyone on staff added a small piece of themselves to the creation of this book. This book is not the result of only one person's effort but the combined effort of the entire staff. I don't think anyone who joins this class realizes what a huge and time consuming task it is to make a yearbook. Yet so many of you spent your afternoons and weekends just to complete a spread that will stand as a history of our days at Vaca High.

Theresa Parker
